

FAKE DOCUMENTS NOTHING NEW IN RELATIONS OF U. S. AND MEXICO

One Forger Boasted of Selling Fraudulent Papers to Prove Mexican Alliance With Moscow.

READY TO MARKET
ALSO PROOF OF FAKE

Congressman Was About to Publish War Scare Documents, but Learned They Were Bogus.

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON,
Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 30.—The recent disclosure that forged documents bearing the name of Secretary of State Kellogg were foisted upon President Calles of Mexico, part of the plot to hasten a crisis in Mexican-American relations, fits in perfectly with what is known of previous efforts along the same line.

There are a few men in this country who are adept in the art of manufacturing such documents, and they appear to have found a ready market for their products among the Mexican oil and land laws and the Mexican religious regulations resulted in strained relations between the two countries.

It was during the latter half of last year, that one of these men approached certain individuals in Washington who were interested in preserving peace between the United States and Mexico, and made the following astonishing confession:

He said he had sold to the agent several large corporations, and a property in Mexico, a set of documents purporting to show a definite connection between the Mexican government and the Communist International, at Moscow. The documents, he said, would be used in an endeavor to bring about a break in diplomatic relations between the United States and Mexico, or the lifting of the embargo.

100 Per Cent Fakes.
Blandly he added, that the documents were 100 per cent fakes, and had been manufactured by whole cloth—or paper. Some of the actual documents into which the matter had been inserted in a way as to alter the original meaning completely. Others were photostatic copies.

Continuing this man said he had sold another set of documents to persons interested in the religious controversy in Mexico. These documents purported to show an alliance between the Mexican government and the Ku Klux Klan, by the terms of which President Calles agreed to eradicate the Catholic church from Mexico, root and branch, in return for which the Klan would use its political influence in this country to prevent hostile action against Mexico.

Still smiling blandly, he admitted that these documents also were fakes. But, he added, in both cases the buyers had purchased them in the belief they were genuine.

Double Dealing for Cash.
Addressing his latest prospects, he made a proposal, the substance of which is accurately stated in the following paraphrase of his language:

"Sooner or later the people to whom I sold these documents will take them public. Their publication is certain to arouse deep resentment in this country against Mexico. That it will do this I desire to prevent, and I can only do this by selling you duplicate sets of all the documents, and any other evidence which is necessary to expose them as made public. By thus exposing them, you will not only destroy the effect of the publication, but the action will be greatly in favor of the end you desire."

In other words, his amazing statement, after having manufactured documents detrimental to Mexico, and sold them to persons known to the Mexican Government, he offered a revised book of evidence which would expose the documents as fakes. It is a case of working both sides of the street with a vengeance and which made no attempt to conceal the object, which was cash in hand.

Further inquiry by the writer failed to disclose positively whether the latest offer was accepted. The documents were that enough of continued on Page 4, Column 3.

Daylight Saving in Abeyance Until Election of Next Year

Citizens' Committee Decides to Drop Ordinance and Submit Proposal to the Voters.

Daylight saving for St. Louis is not in prospect for the next two summers. Members of the citizens' committee backing it said today that it will be held in abeyance until the next regular election, November, 1928, when it will be put up to the voters.

An ordinance, drawn up for submission to the Board of Aldermen on April 19, is abandoned. It called for turning the clock up an hour on the first Sunday in June this year—the last Sunday in April in future years—and turning back to standard time on the last Sunday in September every year. The committee has not yet met for a vote, but the fact that virtually all its members have reached the same opinion makes that a mere formality.

Their decision follows a suggestion of former Mayor Kiel that the Board of Aldermen could not, by any number of public hearings, sift down the widespread dissension to an accurate estimate of which side had the majority.

Twice before—in 1921 and 1923—movements as vigorous for daylight savings got under way here but struck a stone wall in opposition of organized labor and motion picture interests. This year agitation was lively for a month following a statement of Health Commissioner Starkloff that, in conferring at the 1926 meeting of the American Public Health Association, with health commissioners of cities with daylight saving, he found them united in praising its benefits in actual practice, by giving working men and their children an extra hour's recreation in the evenings.

Surveys of the effects of daylight saving in cities which have had several years' experience with it have been begun by the citizens' committee. They will be continued. Straw votes are not called for, since the problem now is not to show how the public stands, but to give the voters all available facts for an informed vote. Lon Sanders, chairman, said the citizens' committee will spend the interval in gathering all the data of its effects on health, labor, tenement families, industries and every other angle.

CALLES TO STAND BY 1923 DEAL WITH U. S.

Labor Minister Resigns, and Optimistic View Is Now Taken of Controversy.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

MEXICO CITY, March 29.—Luis N. Morones, Minister of Industry, Commerce and Labor, will resign soon from the Cabinet. His resignation is before President Calles.

Gen. Celestin Gasca, former Governor of the Federal District, mentioned as his successor. The resignation of Minister Morones is a direct consequence of the decision of President Calles to accept the 1923 understanding between the Mexican Government and American commissioners as morally binding upon the present Mexican Government. This understanding was that of Article 27 of the 1917 Constitution should not be interpreted retroactively.

Gen. Obregon, former President, labored for recognition of his Government by the United States, which was granted largely because of this agreement on the oil and land laws. Lately he has worked to have the Calles Government recognize the agreement. Minister Morones contended that the agreement was violative of the national dignity. President Calles finally took Obregon's view, and then Morones offered his resignation.

Acceptance of the binding force of the 1923 pledges is understood to have been transmitted to the United States Department of State by Ambassador Tellez. An optimistic view is now taken of the settlement of issues between the two Governments.

Killed by Passenger Train.

A. N. Moore, 29 years old, 1809 La Salle street, a brakeman for the Missouri Pacific Railroad, was killed yesterday afternoon by a passenger train No. 11, at Jeddah, St. Louis County. He had alighted from the roof of a boxcar on a side track when he stepped in front of the passenger train.

UNSHRINED HOME IN WHICH MOTHER DIED 20 YEARS AGO

Manus, 78, Discloses Why Old House at 2745 Lucas Wasn't Occupied.

$500,000 ESTATE GOES TO NIECE

Death of Parent and Sister, Man Moved Next Door and Only He Ever Entered Deserted Premises.

Stemmed in by Negro homes and clutter of downtown traffic, a two-story house of the unpromising architecture of the 1870s holds the story of the management and perhaps the disposal of an estate estimated at $500,000.

The house, at 2745 Lucas avenue, lived Thomas Ward McManus, engineer, huntsman and real estate dealer. After he died last Saturday, at the age of 78, it was disclosed that the house had been deserted for more than 20 years ago, and since then had been entered only occasionally by him.

No one else has entered the place since when the Public Administrator's office entered it. The McManus estate, apparently without leaving a will—they left only a few books, the furniture and a collection of stuffed birds just as they had been left when McManus retired to the house next door to the passenger train.

Niece Is Only Heir.

Thomas McManus estate will go to his only relative, Mrs. Camilla Burrows of Davenport, Ia., a niece, the daughter of a wealthy architect. Included in it are cash totaling $111,000, city property of an estimated value of $500,000 and a St. Louis country farm, worth about $100,000. In addition there is a trust estate worth about $150,000, left to McManus by his mother and now given to Mrs. Burrows.

McManus, tall and sturdily built, the son of William McManus, a railroad engineer. His boyhood was spent in the West with his father and he became an expert hunter. The family had come to St. Louis from Davenport when McManus was in his late teens. The older McManus died in 1874, leaving his son part of his estate which is now represented by the $500,000 worth of holdings in downtown real estate. For years younger McManus, his wife, and mother to whom he was devoted, lived in the house at 2745 Lucas avenue, on the northeast corner of Spruwell and Lucas avenues.

It was a quiet life and McManus had plenty of time from the time of managing his estate to fish and hunt, and to stuff the skins with the skill of a taxidermist. After a few years his mother, who was unmarried, died. Later, in 1905, his father died.

Moved From House of Death. Mrs. Dora Motzinger, who was McManus' housekeeper for 15 years, said today that he often referred to the death of his mother as the great grief of his life. He remained in the house for two years and in 1907 moved to a house next door.

From that day on the house at 2745 was kept closed and locked. The housekeeper related that he used to go over there once in a while to see that no one had entered the place and when he found he was always greatly surprised. Mr. McManus and his wife lived a very quiet life in the days that followed. He used to go to work almost every day and had a desk at 102 North Ninth street. On Saturdays he was fond of marketing and he used to go on the street car with his basket to buy groceries and provisions.

He also bought an automobile in 1905 but he never used it much. It is still standing in the garage. Then he bought a new Ford but he didn't like to use it. He used to visit his farm, on the Chester road, near Kirkwood. McManus' wife died on Oct. 5, 1924. She was 74 years old. After McManus buried himself still in his old-fashioned home. He had no difficulties to the last. Mrs. Motzinger said, in reading about the death of his wife, that he was never sick a day in his life.

He died of the cold, a week before his death he suffered a nasal hemorrhage but did not remain in bed. Saturday morning his housekeeper heard him breathing heavily and found him in a hall near his bedroom. She led him back to his room and he lay on the bed. "He seemed to know he was dying," she said. "He folded his hands on his chest, closed his eyes, and died quite peacefully." The house on the west, dark, cold and musty, revealed to searchers a collection of furniture grouped about the rooms as though it had been prepared for moving. It was covered deep with black dust which had sifted in past windows and doors.

The frescoed ceilings, molded with quaint designs, were scaling with time, and the gas fixtures were blackened. Glass cases, black and dusty, bore crowded collections of stuffed birds, and an old bookcase housed a collection of faded books. A safe in one of the rooms was opened to tumble a mass of bundled receipts and letters on the floor.

Every door bore a small glass sign, which read "Parlor," "Library" or "Bedroom." The same desire for labels was shown in McManus' last home, where the littered storeroom contains boxes marked "All sorts of odds and ends" and covered clothing with such labels as "coat, vest and trousers."

House to East Well Kept. The house to the east, however, was well kept. It is furnished with an old assortment of old-fashioned furniture, bronze mantel ornaments and cases of stuffed birds. Every door carries an amazing collection of locks.

"I had to open 27 locks every day before the house was open," Mrs. Motzinger said. "Mr. McManus was always afraid that someone might get in."

Mrs. Burrows, the niece, who is the only apparent heir, has come to St. Louis to take charge of the estate of her uncle, who died Monday in Bellevue Hospital. With her husband she is stopping at the home of William H. Danforth, 17 Kingsbury place.

U. S. PROSECUTOR TO CEASE NIGHT CLUB LIQUOR RAIDS

Tuttle, in New York, Successor to Buckner, Says He Won't Continue Predecessor's Policy.

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, March 30.—Spectacular prohibition raids on Broadway night clubs by the United States District Attorney's office are expected to cease with the advent of Charles H. Tuttle as United States Attorney for the Southern District of New York. He was appointed yesterday by President Coolidge as successor to Emory R. Buckner.

That Tuttle will abandon the raiding policy of his predecessor was indicated by a statement in which he stresses that the United States Attorney's office is a "law office and was not and is not intended to supersede or replace other departments and bureaus of the Government in the exercise of their functions."

Tuttle, his friends say, is a total abstainer from alcoholic liquors.

FELLOWSHIP IN PEDIATRICS FOR WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY

Gift of Mrs. Elias Michael Announced by Dean of the Medical School.

The establishment of a German exchange fellowship in pediatrics (diseases of children) to yield $1000 a year, as a gift of Mrs. Elias Michael, of 4383 Westminster place, was announced today by Dr. W. McKim Marriott, dean of Washington University School of Medicine.

A German physician will come to the school each year for specialization in pediatrics. Mrs. Michael announcing as her reason for her gift, "I believe the work of your department in pediatrics is conceded to be not only the best in our own country, but in some features the best in any country."

LADY ASTOR BEATS BET BILL

Speaks Against Proposal to Legalize Gambling.

By the Associated Press. LONDON, March 30.—Lady Astor played a prominent part in the defeat of an attempt today to introduce a bill in the House of Commons to legalize betting in England. Arthur C. Niven Dixey, Conservative, asked for permission to introduce the measure, remarking that betting had been recognized by the enactment of the betting tax last year.

Lady Astor sprang to her feet and replied: "The betting tax has driven betting into the back streets. I hope the House will vote against legalized betting houses, such as this bill would permit. Whatever the so-called sportsmen may say in its defense, they are up against the moral consciousness of the great mass of the people."

Permission to introduce the bill was refused by a vote of 146 to 44.

French Girl Held at Ellis Island.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. NEW YORK, March 30.—Miss Jacqueline Schally, 18 years old, married Monday in Bellevue Hospital. She was not permitted to land, although she came on a non-immigrant visa. She has a contract to enter the movies and was traveling alone, but told officials she had relatives on her way to this country. Miss Schally was taken to Ellis Island before the Special Board of Inquiry and interrogated as to the length of her stay. Her case then was deferred, pending arrival of a witness at the island. Miss Schally won the prize as the "most beautiful woman in France" at a beauty contest. Miss Schally danced two years in the "Follies Bergere."

HOTEL ROOM ROBBER ADMITS 100 THEFTS

Charles Henry Ray Says He Has Been a Burglar for Eight Years.

A man, 23 years old, who boasts he has toured the country and made a living for the last eight years by robbing hotel rooms, is under arrest, while St. Louis police check up his local operations.

He was arrested yesterday in a Market street pawnshop while trying to sell some clothes stolen in San Francisco. He said his right name is Charles Henry Ray, but he has used the alias of Lee, West and others. He lived in New York City until his parents died eight years ago, and since then, he says, he has been a guest or a thief, or both, at hotels from Chicago to New Orleans and from San Francisco to New York.

He has robbed about 100 rooms, to the best of his recollection. Twice he has been arrested on suspicion, and released. Ten days ago he came to St. Louis, stopping at the Maryland Hotel, a first-class place, was announced today by the Majestic, Laclede, La Salle and two smaller hotels, taking clothing, a kodak and a pistol, which he sold. On March 21 he held up Dr. George H. Frank, a guest at Hotel Jefferson, in his room, robbed him of $4 and locked him in a closet. Dr. Frank was released 20 minutes later by a porter.

The burglar got a lecture, but no cash, when he held up Dr. L. E. Evans, a guest at Hotel Statler, Sunday. Dr. Evans was seated at a writing table, with his door ajar, when Ray entered, displayed a pistol and demanded money.

Dr. Evans said he had no money. Ordered into a closet, he said he would rather be shot. He remained at the table. Ray did not shoot. Instead, he listened while Dr. Evans gave him "fatherly advice," telling him he should reform while he was still young. Ray finally departed, after making Dr. Evans promise he would not notify anyone for 15 minutes.

Dr. Evans and Ray reviewed their conversation at Headquarters yesterday, the former again urging the latter to reform. "You did have some money, didn't you, Doc?" Ray asked. "Yes, but you didn't get it," retorted Dr. Evans. "And, by the way, why didn't you shoot me?" "The pistol wasn't loaded," said Ray.

COUNTLESS OUT OF DANGER, DE TRAFFORD FAILS TO RALLY

Former American Girl Who Shot Admirer and Self Will See Family Today.

By the Associated Press. PARIS, March 30.—Countess de Janze, the former Alice Silverthorne of Chicago, who shot and wounded Raymond V. de Trafford and herself last Saturday, today was considered out of danger, barring unexpected complications. Her physicians said she would be able to see her attorney and family for a few minutes today.

De Trafford is still hovering between life and death, his condition unchanged.

Orrick Confirmation by Senate Regarded as Virtually Certain

Governor Resubmits Name of St. Louis Police Commissioner After Canvass Indicates Strength to Put Him Across.

By CURTIS A. BETTS, Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 30.—Confirmation of Allen C. Orrick, President of the St. Louis Board of Police Commissioners, seems virtually certain at an executive session of the Senate, which probably will be called for this afternoon.

Orrick's nomination, which was rejected by the Senate a week ago, was resubmitted by Gov. Baker yesterday in response to the most remarkable demonstration in many years.

In reappointing Orrick, the Governor directly opposed the Republican organization in St. Louis, choosing rather to heed the advice of business and professional men and women and business and civic organizations. The Governor was quick to act when he was convinced there was a real demand for the retention of Orrick.

Orrick, as is known, was rejected by the Senate because the four Republican Senators from St. Louis—Bates Warner, Depelheuer and Mogler—in response to demands from Republican politicians who had been ignored by Orrick in his management of the Police Department, had insisted that their associates in the Senate stand with them in their objections.

Rural Senators, uninformed of conditions in St. Louis, took the position that the St. Louis Senators, who stood four to two against confirmation, could be presumed to represent public opinion in St. Louis and, under the rule of "senatorial courtesy," voted Orrick out of office. The Governor and while he was still young, Ray finally departed, after making Dr. Evans promise he would not notify anyone for 15 minutes.

Baker Sets Precedent. The Governor, in resubmitting the name of Orrick, established a precedent in Missouri, as never before within the recollection of official had a nomination once rejected been resubmitted. The Governor in his letter to the Senate said:

"To the Fifty-fourth General Assembly: "I have the honor to resubmit to you herewith the name of Allen C. Orrick, St. Louis, for appointment as a member of the Board of Police Commissioners of St. Louis, for a term ending Jan. 1, 1930."

"I realize that this action on my part is contrary to precedent, but in resubmitting this name I have no intention whatever of overstepping my authority and feel that since the same action has been taken by the chief executive of the nation at different times there can be no impropriety in the step that I am taking. I feel that perhaps some of the Senators voted against the confirmation of Mr. Orrick on a misunderstanding of the real situation in St. Louis and some of the Senators, perhaps, did not vote at all."

"I fully realize the authority of your honorable body in the matter of confirmation and respect this authority and I am resubmitting this name, give you full and free opportunity to assert your wishes in the matter."

SHOE PRICE-FIXING CHARGED

Government Sues Northwest Wholesalers as Trust.

By the Associated Press. SEATTLE, Wash., March 30.—The Northwest Shoe Finders' Credit Bureau, including many dealers in the Pacific Northwest, is charged in a complaint filed in Federal Court by the United States Attorney-General with operating in violation of the Sherman antitrust law.

The complaint alleges that on or about Sept. 15, 1924, wholesale shoe dealers agreed to eliminate all competition, fixed sale and credit terms among themselves, agreed on prices to be charged shoe manufacturers and coerced Eastern dealers into refusal to sell materials to Western manufacturers.

SINCLAIR SEEKS NEW TRIAL, CHARGING JUDGE WITH ERROR

Motion Taken Under Adversement Until Tomorrow—Counsel Attacks Court's Instructions.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, March 30.—After listening two hours to argument, Justice Hitz today took under advisement until tomorrow the motion of Harry F. Sinclair, wealthy oil operator, to set aside the verdict of a jury in the District of Columbia Supreme Court finding Sinclair guilty of contempt of the Senate.

Should the motion be overruled, Justice Hitz will fix a time for sentencing Sinclair, convicted for refusing to answer questions before the Senate committee investigating his lease of the Teapot Dome naval oil reserve. Under the law both imprisonment and a fine are mandatory. The jail sentence could not be less than one month nor more than 12 months, and the fine could not exceed $1000.

Sinclair, at liberty on bail, is determined to fight the case to the United States Supreme Court if necessary. A principal ground on which his counsel, George P. Hoover of Washington, and Martin W. Littleton, of New York, argued was that the jury was not permitted to weigh all the evidence and was, in effect, instructed to return a verdict against the lessee of the Wyoming naval oil reserve.

Sinclair was not in court for the argument today.

BOND OF CUCKOO GANGSTER, IN JAIL, FORFEITED AT TRIAL

Belleville Prosecutor Thinks Surrender in St. Louis Scheme to Delay Robbery Hearing.

A $2000 bond signed by Thomas Carten of East St. Louis for James Michaels, Cuckoo gangster, was declared forfeited today in the St. Clair County Circuit Court when Michaels failed to appear for trial for the $2000 holdup of the Illinois Central freight office in East St. Louis on Oct. 10, 1925.

Investigation disclosed that Michaels is a prisoner in City Jail here, having been surrendered yesterday by a man who signed his bond in a St. Louis robbery case, and feared, he said, that Michaels was about to leave town. State Attorney Lindauer at Belleville thinks the surrender was a ruse to delay the trial there. Casare Ciprano, jointly indicted for the East St. Louis holdup, was shot to death during the Cuckoo-Italian liquor feud.

TURKISTAN STILL RETAINS TRIAL MARRIAGE CUSTOM

Natives in Russian State Get Divorces by Telling Wives to Get Out.

TASHKENT, Russia, March 20.—Turkistan is one of the few remaining Moslem countries where the system of temporary marriages prevails.

As in the new Turkey, a man may divorce his wife by saying in substance, "Get thee gone!" He is then free to try matrimony with another.

But the woman, under Islamic law, cannot remarry until 100 days have elapsed after her divorce. If she does so, she is cast out from Mohammedan society as a sinner.

Among the natives of Turkistan the penalty for infidelity in a wife is both severe and humiliating. To show her guilt, her face is blackened and she is placed on a donkey, with her face towards its tail, and led through the bazaar of the town. A public crier precedes the donkey and informs all and sundry of her offense.

FAKE DOCUMENTS NOTHING NEW TO U. S. AND MEXICO

The slimy merchandise was purchased to offset the publication of the fakes, should publication be made.

It was perfectly obvious of course, that no villain could be placed in the world of so slippery a character. Indeed, the persons approached could not even be certain that the man had made the sales which he claimed to have made, although they were inclined to believe there was at least some truth in his claim.

Bogus Letter, Genuine Signature.

He exhibited the duplicate sets, and those who saw them pronounced them marvelous specimens, if not exactly of forgery, at least of fakery. Permitting himself a small display of vanity, the faker explained the deft ledger-main by which one bogus letter had been produced with a signature which was absolutely genuine. The letter was actually signed by the man to whom it was attributed, although the letter itself was entirely bogus.

A genuine letter bearing the signature had been obtained. It had then been given an acid bath which removed from the sheet every trace of writing and printing except the letterhead at the top and the signature at the bottom. Upon the blank signed sheet, the faker had then typewritten the incriminating letter.

What use, if any, was ever made of the bogus documents by the persons to whom the letters claimed he had sold them, was never ascertained. It is true that a few months later Secretary of State Kellogg presented to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee a memorandum supporting to show Bolshevik tendencies on the part of the Mexican Government, but examination showed it to consist principally of stale clippings from communist newspapers in various parts of the world.

It is true also, that certain men claiming to speak for the Knights of Columbus have made speeches in which they said documentary proof of an alliance between the Mexican Government and the Soviet Government existed, but they have never produced it publicly and their utterances have received no support from the responsible heads of the Catholic church in this country, but rather the contrary.

More Forged Documents.

Another and more recent attempt to make forgery a paying part of the Mexican question, apparently occurred early this spring.

To a certain member of Congress who had vigorously opposed the administration's policy toward Mexico was brought a set of documents which purported to show that the agent of certain American oil companies was engaged with certain other interests in fomenting a revolution in Mexico and actually had purchased and shipped a large quantity of arms. The documents included letters, bills of lading, ships manifests and other papers which gave the thing every appearance of plausibility.

It looked like an airtight case, and the Congressman, hot with indignation, was all for making it public without delay. However, he consulted with friends, who advised him to investigate the source of the documents before making them public. He made inquiries and was told that they had come from a high official source in Mexico but that no inquiries had been made in that quarter, for fear of spoiling everything.

When they heard this, the Congressman's friends were thoroughly suspicious, and caused inquiries to be made in the quarter from which he had been warned to stay away. Those inquiries at once disclosed that the documents had never been heard of there and further investigation revealed that they were almost certainly forgeries. The matter was dropped.

Here again, the objection was perfectly obvious. The Congressman was one of the group known as friendly to Mexico; that is, he had vigorously opposed the administration's harsh attitude toward Mexico over the oil and land laws. Had he been duped into making these documents public, it is probably they would immediately have been exposed as forgeries, and the Congressman would have been discredited before the country.

Moreover, to some extent, all those sharing his opinions of the Mexican question would have been discredited. It was a very narrow escape for him and them.

Apparently the manufacture and sale of "evidence" touching Mexico has been a flourishing industry in the United States ever since the Mexican oil and land laws became a source of diplomatic controversy between the two countries.

Just two years ago a newspaper syndicate published a series of articles by "Dr. Jacob Nozovitsky," formerly of the Russian Czarist secret police, relating how for a fee of $25,000 and his expenses he had produced a large mass of evidence conclusively proving that the Mexican Government was in alliance with the Third Communist International.

In his narrative, however, he related that when he returned to New York with the "evidence" his clients deemed it insufficient, whereupon he repaired to his hotel room and soon supplied the deficiencies.

Prior to that interesting work, he said he had been engaged by the Department of Justice in hunting down "reds" in this country.

When so much is known of the means which have been employed to embroil this country with Mexico and when so much is indicated concerning the interests that have made use of these means, the ordinary citizen naturally wonders in what degree forgery, fakery, imposture and hoax have contributed to the present strained situation. He may also wonder what steps, if any, have been taken to punish those who have practiced it.

If her hands could talk... they'd scream!

Typewriting looks so easy—you wonder why your stenographer seems so fagged at night—why her work slows up in the afternoon.

Her hands could tell you, 50,000 times a day and more the sensitive nerves in her fingertips feel the sharp recoil as the keys "touch bottom."

That is why so many offices are changing to the L. C. Smith.

The L. C. Smith has no recoil. Keys never touch bottom—and the smooth ball-bearing action makes typing amazingly easy—free from nervous strain.

SENATOR REED IS 'WHOLE SHOW' IN AND OUT OF COURT

Michigan Democrats Clamored for His Presence as Speaker at Many Public Functions.

(Copyright, 1927.)

DETROIT, Mich., March 30.—The presence of Senator James A. Reed, of Detroit, defending Henry Ford in the libel suit begun by Aaron Sapiro has galvanized the moribund Michigan Democratic party into new life.

Democrats are rallying here from all over the State, first in a drive to bring the Democratic National Convention to Detroit and second, to boost Senator Reed as the party's next nominee for the presidency. Democratic leaders from surrounding towns are besting Reed with requests that he deliver addresses or to attend receptions in his honor. The Senator is the victim of so much pulling and hauling that with the burden of the trial on his shoulders, he is carrying perhaps as heavy a burden as any man in Michigan. But he carries the burden gallantly.

At a banquet in his honor given by the Democratic State Central Committee, he moved his audience of 1000 persons so deeply that most of them were reaching for their handkerchiefs, then brought them cheering to their feet with his eloquence. One weather-beaten old Democratic politician, wearied by running losing races for the last 30 years, ran to Reed with tears streaming down his cheeks as he hailed the party's new Messiah.

Senator Enjoys Himself.

The Senator apparently enjoyed the opportunity to tear loose with an old fashioned stump speech, as they used to do it back in Jackson County in the old days. He exorcised the administration, tracing the "red line of corruption" through it. He said that, so far as prohibition was concerned, he thought the people could run their own business better than Wayne B. Wheeler. He got loud applause from the audience on this.

William E. Comstock, nominee for Governor at last election, Horatio J. Abbott, chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee, and William E. Donnelly, former candidate for Congressman, were among those present. Comstock said after the banquet that every possible effort was being made to get the next Democratic convention for Detroit.

The newspapers here, regardless of party alignments, are treating Senator Reed most generously. There is no disputing the fact that Reed is "running away with the show" both in and out of the courtroom.

The Senator's Cigar.

Reed is the handsomest and the best tailored man in the courtroom. The jury, including six men, four women with bobbed hair and two un-bobbed, watches him intently. It is a long time between smokes. Reed consults his watch every few minutes—the courtroom clock is broken—and at recess he makes a dash for the corridor and lights a cigar. For ten minutes he smokes like an incinerator. Court reconvenes and the Senator mournfully relinquishes two-thirds of his cigar. One imagines him meditating "a jury is only a jury, but a good cigar is a smoke."

They used to say back in Jackson County that a horse could not kick if you tied his ears forward. Can "Jim" Reed make his big speech in the Ford trial without a smoke? This and other great issues will be resolved in the days to come.

DEMOCRATS MAKE PLEA FOR PART IN CITY AFFAIRS

Platform Points Out Minority Party Has Never Been Represented in the Board of Aldermen.

The best interests of the city demand a minority representation in the Board of Aldermen, solidly Republican since 1915. It is stated in a platform made public yesterday for 15 Democratic candidates in the aldermanic election of next Tuesday.

Under the charter of 1914, which provides that aldermen be elected by the vote of the city at large, there has never been a Democratic member of the board, which had its first session in 1915. The platform of the Democratic candidates follows:

"We, the candidates on the Democratic ticket and the Democratic City Committee, believing that the public is entitled to a declaration of the major principles for which we stand in the forthcoming Municipal election, submit the following platform:

"We believe that it is to the best interest of our community that there shall be representation in the conduct of the city government of all elements of our citizenship, and that it is a dangerous principle not to have minority representation, particularly in the legislative branch of our city government.

Check to Majority Urged.

"We believe that, by proper check exercised by a minority, substantial economies may be effected; and that the Municipal tax rate can and should be reduced without sacrificing any necessary municipal activities or developments.

"We believe that a proper solution of the bridge problem is of utmost importance. The Free Bridge belongs to all our people and we hold that any solution of the terminal problem must be effected only by a fair referendum to the people, and that utmost caution and candor should be exercised by all city officials to give to the people the full facts to the end that they may decide the question for themselves.

"We believe that the grade crossing problem in St. Louis requires aggressive activity on the part of municipal officials, to the end that this menace to the safety of our citizenship shall be speedily eliminated.

"We believe that the proceeds from the bond issue should be economically disbursed to the end that the maximum advantages should accrue to the community. We believe that, in as much as this is the people's money, they should, at all times, be kept fully and accurately informed as to its expenditures.

For Business Principles.

"Finally, we believe that good business principles should be applied throughout the conduct of the municipal offices, and to that end, we promise to devote ourselves to the efficient discharge of the duties of the respective offices to which we have been nominated."

The Democratic candidates are: For President, Florence J. Curran; Second Ward, William Langanke; Fourth, William F. Henry; Sixth, Hugh J. McFarland; Eighth, John Trantila; Tenth, Edward J. Maurer; Twelfth, William A. Dorsey; Fourteenth, Jerome K. West; Sixteenth, J. D. Lukenbill; Eighteenth, Frank Korasick; Twentieth, Walter W. Ziegenbalg; Twenty-second, Sam H. Bierman; Twenty-fourth, Mrs. W. R. Wilkinson; Twenty-sixth, Francis L. Kane; Twenty-eighth, Lora Otto. There is no election in the odd-numbered wards this year.

Liberty Quartet to Sing.

The Liberty Quartet, Negroes, of the Liberty Congregational Church, will sing Negro spirituals tonight at the Compton Hill Congregational Church, at a church dinner.

STOP BAD BREATH

People afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edward's Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know them. Dr. Edward's Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and stomach, stimulating them to natural secretion, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do not without any of the bad after effects of laxatives. Dr. Edward's Olive Tablets bring no gripping, pain or any disagreeable effects. Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after 20 years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint, with the attendant bad breath.

Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil, you will know them by their olive color. Take two to four a week and note the effect. See box.

"Last winter I contracted a severe cold which affected me terribly and seemed that I could not get rid of it. Finally I decided to take Dr. Edward's Golden Medical Discovery, and an idea it would relieve me if anything would, and so it did. I took three bottles and was relieved of all the effects of my very bad cold. I think the 'Discovery' is a wonderful tonic for anybody in a debilitated condition of health."—Mrs. M. E. "THE OVERLAND ROUTE"

ASSERTS BANKERS' SELLING METHODS ARE OUT OF DATE

Savings Departments Haven't Kept Step With Progress in Other Lines,
Gaylord S. Morse Says.

The failure of savings deposits to increase in proportion with the increase in per capita income during the last 10 years was attributed to seven influences by Gaylord S.
Morse, assistant cashier of the State Bank of Chicago, in an address before the Mid-West Savings Conference of the American Bankers Association, which closes at Hotel Statler today.

The seven influences, he declared, were the growth of building and loan associations, the remarkable increase in the volume of life insurance, the steady development of customer and employee stock ownership, the growing practice of bond investment by small investors,
the absorption of funds by real estate developments, the spread of installment selling and intensive selling methods, and the higher standards of living, which calls for greater expenditures by wage-earners.

"To counteract these influences," Morse said, "the bankers must adopt more aggressive sales policies, more up-to-date and scientific advertising methods and tune in on the current trend of things. Our selling method have not kept in step, much less anticipated the kaleidoscopic changes in our business world."

"Public Won't Be Pushed."
A new element has been injected into business which the banker must recognize. This element is the abrupt suddenness with which the buying public changes its mind
and its habits of spending money.
They buy whatever takes their fancy, discard anything they dislike, and refuse to be pushed or pulled into any line of action. As a result, the buying market is unstable, excitable and fickle, subject to whims and moods.

"The banker, even if he dislikes selling, must now perforce know a great deal about sales methods.
Our banks are sorely in need of merchandising brains. We must ask ourselves whether our sales arguments are not a bit antiquated and redolent of moth balls and two-cylinder cars."

A plea for machine banking, as against the old pen and ink system
of bank bookkeeping, was made by Stephen C. Thorning, savings manager of the First National Bank of Kansas City, who advocated machine banking from a standpoint of efficiency and also as a protection to the banker against dishonest
employees and depositors.

The relative advantages of various forms of savings advertising
were discussed by C. H. Wetterau, vice president of the American National Bank of Nashville, Tenn., who recommended that advertising executives study different types of advertising continuously and concentrate their efforts in a well-rounded campaign.

New Laws Discussed.
At the conference's annual banquet last night, Fred N. Shepherd, executive manager of the American Bankers' Association, discussed the new McPadden-Pepper branch banking law which became effective in February, placing national banks on a parity with state banks in cities where branch banking is permitted by state law.

Describing the preponderant sentiment of American bankers as against the extension of branch banking, Shepherd declared the law was a compromise measure which permitted branch banking in cities of 22 states, but definitely put bounds on the extension of branch banking, preserved the unit system
of banking and assured the control of national finances through the state law.

Other speakers at the closing sessions of the conference were:
W. S. Webb, president Missouri
Savings Association Bank, Kansas City, "Savings Bank Taxation and Other Problems;" Paul S. Abbott, vice president, Southern Illinois National Bank, East St. Louis, "School Savings;" Mrs. L. D. Sultz, savings manager, Mercantile Trust Co., St. Louis, "Fashions Have Changed in Savings;" W. Espey Albig, deputy manager, American Bankers' Association, New York,
"Lights and Shadows in Savings;"
Fred W. Ellsworth, vice president,

Hibernia Bank and Trust Co., New Orleans, "Developing the Bank Personnel," and E. E. McCleish, president, William Elliott Graves, Inc., Chicago, "Savings Bank Literature."

Minnesota Racing Bill Passed.
By the Associated Press.
ST. PAUL, Minn., March 30.—
The lower house of the Minnesota Legislature has voted favorably for pari-mutuel machines in connection with a bill to legalize horse-race betting. The House approved the measure, 71 to 47, and sent it to the Senate. The bill also provides for a racing commission.

BROKER'S CASHIER ACCUSED OF $224,000 EMBEZZLEMENT

By the Associated Press.
LOS ANGELES, Cal., March 30.—Schuyler D. Orrell, 26 years old, cashier for the local brokerage firm of E. F. Hutton & Co., is under arrest charged with embezzling about $224,000.

Deputy District Attorney Forrest said Orrell confessed he had lost heavily in stock market speculations. The surety company which bonded the firm announced it had salvaged $75,000 from stocks in Orrell's possession.

SPECIAL GRAND JURY FOR CHICAGO ELECTION

Inquiry Ordered Into Conditions Governing Mayorality Vote Next Tuesday.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 30.—Chief Justice Lindsay today granted the Democratic City Central Committee's request for a special grand jury to investigate elections conditions in connection with the mayorality election next Tuesday. The application for a special State's Attorney was found imperfect, and will be revised.

The petition was opposed by State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe, who declared Attorney-General Oscar Carlstrom was able and ready to make any investigation necessary, and also that the special Attorney he carried on the elections investigation last fall has never been dismissed. Crowe is one of the Republican leaders supporting the party nominee, William Hale Thompson, former Mayor, who is opposed by William E. Dever, Democrat, and Dr. John Dill Robertson, Independent Republican.

Both major candidates continue to claim the greatest strength, with Robertson declaring he has more power than both his rivals. The Chicago loop district is entertained daily by a continuous blare of brass bands and automobile siren parades. Noonday political meetings bring crowds to downtown theaters and night gatherings send throngs to ward halls and meeting places. Candidates and their speakers have talked themselves hoarse, but will still be at it until next Monday night.

Notice was given of a suit for $100,000, charging slander, filed by Morgan A. Collins, Chief of Police, against Adelbert H. Roberts, Negro State Senator. The suit is based on statements alleged to have been made by Roberts at a recent Senate committee hearing in which he charged Chief Collins with having accepted graft in large amounts from resortkeepers in Chicago's Negro district.

Station at Marissa, Ill., Robbed. Harvey South, Illinois Central operator at Marissa, Ill., was held up at the station at 4:30 a. m. today by an armed man, who took $7.50 and a small iron safe containing $1. The robber had an accomplice who waited outside.

WHO SAID LONDON IS AHEAD OF THE UNITED STATES IN STYLE?

IT'S TRUE that in London there is a large group of men who have the leisure and the inclination to spend a large part of their time developing good looking clothes for themselves. It's a real contribution. Most of us haven't time to do it. But here is what really happens

HART SCHAFFNER & MARX

have style experts not only in London but in every style center

They help to develop these styles so that the minute a new idea "catches on," you get it

For example: In London now you'll see the topcoat shown above. Raglan sleeves, as a Londoner would say, "very swagger." You'll also see this 2 button lounge jacket. You'll see these same models in the stores where Hart Schaffner & Marx clothes are sold

20 ST. LOUISANS URGE SENATE TO PASS TRANSIT BILL

Go to Jefferson City to Present Argument for Measure to Permit City to Build Subways.

Twenty representatives of downtown civic organizations went to Jefferson City today to ask the State Senate:

(1) To pass the House enabling act for rapid transit in St. Louis without the vitalizing amendments adopted in committee, or

(2) Pass the bill with the amendments and hurry it back to the House so that the House can concur and the city can at once establish a Rapid Transit Commission, leaving the financial phases of rapid transit for determination in the next legislature, or

(3) Raise the percentage of cost of subways that can be assessed against property from 40, as proposed by the Senate Committee, to 50 per cent, even though the city has been asking 75.

Failure, the Senate will be told, will prevent St. Louis from doing anything about rapid transit for two years, and the city and its business interests cannot afford delay.

Opponents Offer Compromise.

Scattering downtown property interests, which have been opposing the bill and were responsible for the committee amendments that all but killed the bill, yesterday declared that they would withdraw all opposition if the city administration would agree to limiting to 50 per cent the proportion of cost of subways that could be assessed against property, leaving car riders to bear 50 per cent out of fares they would be required to pay. It had been the hope of the administration to assess as much as 75 per cent against property, enabling car riders to enjoy rapid transit at a fare not much higher than they now pay for insufficient surface transportation.

Isaac T. Cook, rental agent for many large downtown office buildings, said to the special committee on rapid transit of the Board of Aldermen, meeting yesterday to hear objections, that his clients were in favor of rapid transit. They recognized it as the salvation of downtown real estate values. They knew that if means were not provided of getting the public in and out of the downtown with less delay than at present, that business would desert the present downtown and scatter to neighborhood centers. However, he felt that property could not assume more than 50 per cent of the cost of subways. With such a provision all opposition from the downtown property interest would disappear, he predicted.

Charles Kratz, another downtown property owner, corroborated Cook's view. He wanted subways, he said, but he felt that property should not bear more than half the cost.

Deplores Belated Opposition.

O. J. McCawley, former president of the Real Estate Exchange, deplored that opposition had developed at so late an hour that any legislation in the present Legislature was imperiled. He said the proposal had been published many months ago and that there had been plenty of opportunity for objections to be heard. He favored passage of the bill as originally proposed in the House.

C. E. Smith, consulting engineer for the city, urged that the Legislature be asked to pass the bill with or without its objectionable amendments. "The important thing now," he said, "is to get a start. The bill authorizes the Board of Aldermen to appoint a Transit Commission to draft a detailed plan. The method of financing can be deferred. It is likely that no discussion of finances will be necessary before another Legislature meets."

12 Against 1,000,000.

Chairman Wimer of the aldermanic committee opposed such procedure. He thought it would be useless to pass the bill as amended. He saw no use in preparing a plan if the financial provision for putting it into effect were impossible of public ratification. He declared the assessment plan was the only sound method of building subways and the unwillingness of property owners to assume a just proportion of the cost would make the measure unpopular. He declared only 12 property owners downtown had raised a voice against a bill.

"These 12 should not be permitted to obstruct the desire of 1,000,000 people who are anxious for rapid transit," he said.

President Kinsey of the Board of Public Service thought that the thing now was to get a commission established. Discussion of other details could come later, he thought.

(1) To pass the House enabling act for rapid transit in St. Louis without the vitalizing amendments adopted in committee, or (2) Pass the bill with the amendments and hurry it back to the House so that the House can concur and the city can at once establish a Rapid Transit Commission, leaving the financial phases of rapid transit for determination in the next legislature, or

(3) Raise the percentage of cost of subways that can be assessed against property from 40, as proposed by the Senate Committee, to 50 per cent, even though the city has been asking 75.

Failure, the Senate will be told, will prevent St. Louis from doing anything about rapid transit for two years, and the city and its business interests cannot afford delay.

Opponents Offer Compromise.

Scattering downtown property interests, which have been opposing the bill and were responsible for the committee amendments that all but killed the bill, yesterday declared that they would withdraw all opposition if the city administration would agree to limiting to 50 per cent the proportion of cost of subways that could be assessed against property, leaving car riders to bear 50 per cent out of fares they would be required to pay. It had been the hope of the administration to assess as much as 75 per cent against property, enabling car riders to enjoy rapid transit at a fare not much higher than they now pay for insufficient surface transportation.

Isaac T. Cook, rental agent for many large downtown office buildings, said to the special committee in rapid transit of the Board of Aldermen, meeting yesterday to hear objectors, that his clients were in favor of rapid transit. They recognized it as the salvation of downtown real estate values. They knew that if means were not provided of getting the public in and out of the downtown with less delay than at present that business would desert the present downtown and scatter to neighborhood centers. However, he felt that property could not assume more than 50 per cent of the cost of subways. With such a provision all opposition from the downtown property interest would disappear, he predicted.

Charles Kratz, another downtown property owner, corroborated Cook's view. He wanted subways, he said, but he felt that property should not bear more than half the cost.

Deplorable Belated Opposition.

O. J. McCawley, former president of the Real Estate Exchange, deplored that opposition had developed at so late an hour that any legislation in the present Legislature was impossible. He said the proposal had been published many months ago and that there had been plenty of opportunity for objectors to be heard. He favored passage of the bill as originally proposed in the House.

C. E. Smith, consulting engineer for the city, urged that the Legislature be asked to pass the bill with or without its objectionable amendments. "The important thing now," he said, "is to get a start. The bill authorizes the Board of Aldermen to appoint a Transit Commission to draft a detailed plan. The method of financing can be deferred. It is likely that no discussion of finances will be necessary before another Legislature meets."

Chairman Wimer of the Aldermanic committee opposed such procedure. He thought it would be useless to pass the bill as amended. He saw no use in preparing a plan of the financial provision for putting it into effect were impossible of public reaction. He declared the assessment plan was the only sound method of building subways and the unwillingness of property owners to assume a just proportion of the cost would make the measure unpopular. He declared only 12 property owners downtown had raised a voice against a bill.

These 12 should not be permitted to obstruct the desire of 1,000,000 people who are anxious for rapid transit," he said.

President Kinsey of the Board of Public Service thought that the thing now was to get a commission established. Discussion of other details could come later, he thought.

DESCRIBES NATIONAL TRAITS IN RESTAURANTS IN PARIS

Director of Psychotherapy School Says U. S. Women Order Much But Eat Very Little.

PARIS, March 30.—According to the director of the School of Psychotherapy, it is easy to tell the nationality of people in restaurants by the way they eat and comport themselves at table. The following, he says, are the national characteristics:

American: When a couple from the United States sit at table, the woman takes the menu and orders the food in large quantities. She eats very little, while her husband eats a great deal.

English: An English couple will first find the most comfortable seat. The husband selects the food. Both eat with avidity.

German: The German usually dines without his wife. Sometimes, after dinner at home, he will go out to a restaurant to complete the meal, and especially to drink more beer.

French: A French couple choose a seat where they can see everything that takes place in the restaurant. Their choice of food is a joint affair carried out after long deliberation.

FARMER SHOTS AT JUDGE

VILLA GROVE, Ill., March 30.—Judge William B. Reeves grappled in his courtroom with Samuel T. Anderson, farmer, who attempted to shoot him when the Judge refused to set aside a mortgage so he could sell his farm.

Anderson fired at the Judge and the Judge tackled him. Anderson fired again at close range as they struggled.

Both men were severely cut when they fell into a glass bookcase during the scuffle. Neither of the shots took effect. The room was wrecked. Anderson was arrested.

PASTOR URGES REVIVAL TO WIN YOUNGER GENERATION

The Rev. M. S. Rice of Detroit Believes Old-time Methods Are Still Efficacious.

The younger generation is just as susceptible to evangelistic preaching as the generation before it, the Rev. Dr. Martin S. Rice, pastor of the Metropolitan M. E. Church of Detroit, Mich., told the Ministerial Alliance of Greater St. Louis yesterday at Hotel Statler. The trouble, he believes, lies not so much in the boys and girls, as in the lack of good preachers and in the frequency of sermons that pass on doubts.

"The greatest need of the churches of Jesus Christ today is a sweeping revival," he said.

Dr. Rice preached at yesterday's noonday services at the Orpheum Theater, on "Discontented Optimism." He will speak again tonight at Westminster Presbyterian Church.

ST. LOUIS IS BIRTH PLACE OF THE ICE CREAM CONE

The ice cream cone was originated by a hurried visitor to the World's Fair here in 1904. He bought a "Rose Kuchen," a sort of waffle, and had a bit of ice cream dabbed on top of it so he could eat and see the sights at the same time.

Originators and manufacturers of quality upholstered furniture are the Prufrock-Litten Furniture Company, Fourth and St. Charles Streets. Since 1870 this furniture has been made right here in St. Louis and shipped to all parts of the United States.

This week their Living-Room Suites are being sold at Factory Prices! A good week to make your selection.

15 Years of Suffering
Relieved by Tanlac

Stomach Trouble So Bad That Woman Had to Go to Bed, Vomiting Spells, Dizziness and Constipation Causes Mother of 5 Children Intense Pain
and Agony. Finds Quick Relief

The most tragic thing in life is to see the mother of a family struggling through the days, trying to do her work while suffering from stomach trouble. Mrs. John M. Roth, 1007 S. Second St., Sedalia, Mo., the mother of a large family, says:
"For 15 years I suffered from gas
in the stomach and at times I would have to go to bed to get relief.
I had awful spells with my back and often after eating I would sweat and dizziness would smother me. Once during a spell I nearly fell on the stove. Constipation battered me and sapped my body
of energy."

"As result of my stomach disorders and constipation, sick headaches attacked me. Often after going to town I would have to be laid from the buggy, I would be in such pain. I heard of Tanlac and decided to try it.
"That was three years ago. After I had taken 2 bottles I began to eat more. Food tasted better.
I did not suffer from stomach trouble. My headaches vanished.
Tanlac helped me a great deal and

relieved terrible years of suffering and pain."
Thousands have been relieved from the bondage of pain by this wonderful tonic, made from roots,
barks and herbs according to the famous Tanlac formula. It usually builds strength as it banishes pain. It puts flesh upon weak, sallow bodies. For relief take Tanlac. There's nothing like it.

sults. At your druggist's. More

NO RECOMMENDATION

ON ALROY S. PHILLIPS

Senate Judiciary Committee Avoids Responsibility for His Probable Rejection.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 30.—
The Senate Judiciary Committee today avoided responsibility for the expected rejection by the Senate of the nomination of Alroy S. Phillips, chairman of the Workmen's Compensation Commission. It voted to report the appointment to the Senate without recommendation.

Phillips, through lack of diplomacy in a speech in Kansas City
several weeks ago, incurred the enmity of many lawyers throughout the State, and opposition to his confirmation came from lawyers,
several of whom appeared before the Judiciary Committee Saturday.
In the Kansas City speech, which was before the local bar association, he told the lawyers that he construed the purpose of the compensation law to be to guarantee to the injured workman the full compensation paid by the employer, and that under the law there was no reason for a division by the injured employee with a lawyer.

He said the members of the commission were able to settle all cases and, in effect, said that lawyers would not be welcome before the commission, and that if they appeared they would be given little consideration.

A majority of the members of the Senate and all the members of the Judiciary Committee are lawyers,
and it had been the report that Phillips was to be rejected because of his Kansas City speech, although
if he is not confirmed, the official explanation probably will be that he is considered "temperamentally unfit" for the office. Directness of speech and action, instead of diplomacy, will have been Phillips' undoing.

Phillips appeared before the committee Saturday and defended
the attitude of the commission in attempting to settle damage claims without lawyers. He said that in the four months the commission had existed, it had settled 11,000 claims without either party to any of the controversies having appealed to the courts.

SNYDER TRAILED HIS WIFE AND GRAY AT NIGHT CLUBS
New York Cafe Manager Tells of Visits by Husband, Seeking Divorce Evidence.

NEW YORK, March 30.—While
Henry Judd Gray and Mrs. Ruth Snyder are alleged to have been plotting the death of the woman's husband, he was trailing them through New York night clubs for divorce evidence, authorities were told today.

A month before he was killed
Albert Snyder visited the Twin Oaks restaurant in search of the pair, Otto H. Roberts, manager of the restaurant, said. He said he had seen the pair, now awaiting trial for murder, together often.
Reports that Gray and Mrs.
Snyder got money through threats against wealthy business men introduced to the woman by Gray reached defense lawyers today. Attorneys were told they received $2,000 from two men for "brushing up" their acquaintance with Mrs.
Snyder.

OIL STATION OWNER, BEHIND LOCKED DOORS, DEFIES ROBBER Holdup Man Makes Second Attempt to Rob Hayden Lavell
at Lindell and Sarah.

A two-gun robber, who held up Hayden Lavell in his oil filling station at Lindell boulevard and Sarah street two weeks ago, returned at 2:40 a. m. today and knocked on the station door, which Lavell had locked in anticipation of such a visitor. Lavell unlocks the door
when he sees a customer outside.
This time, however, he saw the armed man and told him, "Nothing doing." The robber went to another door, also locked, and became angry when Lavell again refused to let him in.

"I'll shoot somebody," the robber shouted.
"Go ahead and shoot," replied Lavell, taking refuge in a washroom. The robber left, without firing a shot.

Twice Escaped Prisoner Caught.
By the Associated Press.
LANSING, Kan., March 30.—
Clint Hansen, who escaped from the Missouri penitentiary at Jefferson City last week, has been captured at Hardin, Ok., and brought here. He escaped before his sentence was begun. He must serve out a 10 to 20-year sentence for highway robbery at Wichita and then will be turned over to the Missouri prison. He escaped from the Kansas penitentiary in August, 1925, after serving since 1917. The prisoner was serving a term at Jefferson City from Joplin, Mo.

BOY, 4, AND YOUNG MAN KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENTS

Albert Watter, the Child, Runs From Behind Pile of Dirt Into Side of Machine.

A 4-year-old boy and a young man were killed in automobile accidents yesterday afternoon and last night, bringing the number of motor vehicle fatalities for the year to 29, as compared with 44 during the same period of 1926.

The boy, Albert Watter of 7724 (near) South Broadway, was killed at 8:30 p. m. when he ran from behind a four-foot pile of dirt into the side of a machine at Water and Prim streets. A rear wheel passed over his body. He was internally injured. The driver, Dominick Contini, 19, a chauffeur, of 7812 Vulcan street, told police he did not see the child until too late to avoid the accident.

A motor cycle driven by William Harkins, 22, an oil filling station attendant, of 1300A Arsenal street, collided with an automobile at Hickory and Twelfth streets, at 8 p. m. Harkins was thrown from the motorcycle, suffering a skull fracture and internal injuries from which he died early today at City Hospital.

Charles Stilwell, 21, of 817 Allen avenue, said he was driving south in Twelfth and was attempting to strike the bank with two revolvers last night and escaped with $1200 in Harkins' motor cycle, eastbound cash.

rammed into the side of his machine.

Holds Up Bank Twice in Month.

CORTLAND, O., March 30.—A lone robber, who held up the Cortland Savings Bank less than a month ago, again cowed employees of the bank with two revolvers last night and escaped with $1200 in Harkins' motor cycle, eastbound cash.

Decline in Prices Since War Exp

Harvard Economist Looks for

of Settlements, But Not Ju

THE following article, reproduced by permission from the March issue of the Atlantic Monthly, is by Prof. Frank W. Taussig, since 1901 Professor of Economics at Harvard University. He was chairman of the first U. S. tariff commission under President Wilson and is a former president of the American Economic Association. Born in St. Louis, he has spent the greater part of his life teaching and writing the principles of political economy.

By F. W. TAUSSIG.

THE sums involved in the settlements with our former allies are very great. The total owed to the United States comes in round numbers to 10 billions of dollars—10 thousand millions. Almost the whole of this sum is due for advances made during the war and for the conduct of the war. Something is owed for American supplies left in Europe after the war and sold there, and something more for relief extended after the war, over nine-tenths, however, represents war expenditures, and it is this nine billions alone to which I shall give attention. The three chief debtors are Great Britain with four billions of dollars, France with three and one-third billions, Italy with one and two-thirds billions. I state the sums in round numbers, as I shall throughout this paper.

Repayment Agreements.

Agreements on the terms of repayment have been made with all the debtors, big and little. With the exception of France, each of them has come to a definitive settlement with the United States; and a settlement with France will doubtless come long. In every case the agreement is for annual payments spread over a period of 42 years, the period beginning with 1922 for Great Britain, with 1923 for Belgium, 1924 for Italy and so on, according to the dates when the several agreements were reached. The annual payments are moderate, some as small as $100,000 for the first five years, and then rise to a figure which is maintained practically to the end. Great Britain is the only country that pays heavy sums at the start—roughly $150,000,000 a year for the first 10 years, thereafter about $130,000,000.

Italy's payment begins with only $5,000,000, rises to $23,000,000 by 1936, and finally attains a maximum of $50,000,000.

Belgium's begins with $5,000,000 and in 10 years becomes about $13,000,000.

Terms Proposed for France.

The proposed arrangement with France calls for $10,000,000 annually during the first five years (beginning with 1925), and for a maximum of $125,000,000 by 1943; some such figure, it is probable, will be found in the eventual settlement. Taking all the countries concerned, and including the sums proposed for France, we find that the total remittances to the United States on debt account will be in round numbers $210,000,000 a year during the first five-year period, and $250,000,000 for the second five-year period, then about $150,000,000 for 45 years thereafter; and finally something more than $400,000,000 for the last decade of the long-drawn-out process. The end result is reached in 1944 for Great Britain, and in the years immediately following for the other countries.

Book Value Figures.

I remarked at the outset that the sums involved are huge—totaling less than nine billions. But this total stands only for the book amount of the loans as made by us during the two short years of the war period. What it stands for in other terms than book account—that was really handed over by us to our allies when the loans were made and recorded—will be indicated presently. While it behooves us to understand and remember just how things then stood, it is not our point to dwell on their course. What is to be noted is the obvious contrast between the huge loan sum and the comparatively small annual payments, and the perhaps less obvious fact that this series of moderate annual payments is the one real thing coming back to the United States.

The annual payments alone have immense importance. True, an actualy can calculate how much they represent, from this point of view, as an equivalent capital sum. According as he figures on a 3 per cent interest basis, or on one of 4 per cent, or 4 1/2 per cent, he will get different results. The debt repayment rate is lower or higher—may be reckoned as the "present year to year by the Compulsory Insurance for Auto Drivers.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

WE are that a group of Illinois lawyers are now drafting a statute which would require all automobile drivers in the State to carry liability insurance. The desirability of such a statute in our own State is beyond question. Many an unfortunate man, woman or child has been incapacitated for life largely on account of recklessness of drivers who carry no insurance whatsoever.

Objections are expected from two quarters, the automobile manufacturers and the insurance company. The objections of automobile manufacturers and sales representatives are basic and well founded if the selfishness of personal motives can be endured by the public. They feel that insurance being compulsory would limit the sales prospects, especially in the cheap car class. This is true. Every step forward entails temporary hardships somewhere and turn about is fair play. Under a statute drawn to cover the exigency, compulsory insurance of the car immediately upon purchase would not necessarily prove detrimental. A provision could be inserted whereby after conviction and fine for careless driving insurance would become compulsory to run for a period, say of three years, to be required again thereafter only in case of repeated carelessness or accident record.

And why should the insurance companies object? It would not decrease their business nor would the State necessarily assume the role of a casualty company. Insurance could be handled exactly as it is, still be written by the companies as now, but only written by those companies that had the approval of the State government.

Our Meridian and Temperatures.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

IN regard to the article by Mr. Montrose Hayes, of the "United States Weather Bureau," I beg to state that Mr. Hayes made many statements that are correct, but I have to differ with him on some points. St. Louis is a Southern city by a very close meridian reading, but by oldest customs we are a Northern city, as we are north of the Mason and Dixon line and are always considered as such. Turning the clock ahead does not affect many children under 16 years of age, but it does affect the temperature. We are the only city of our size and consequence that has not adopted daylight savings. He reports we are one hour, one minute ahead of natural time. I should like to know his explanation of natural time and how the city of Cincinnati is being affected by being 23 minutes behind the sun. Regarding Chicago and New York being cooler than St. Louis, one is 300 miles north, and the other a small distance north. Chicago has the lake, New York the ocean, but cheer up, St. Louis has the River des Peres.

HARLOW R. SPENCER.

Earl Carroll's Offending.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I WANT very heartily to disagree with your editorial reference to those who might be inclined to disapprove of the Earl Carroll after-theater entertainment in New York, as "fantastical moralists."

To such of your readers as are interested in this subject, you should give credit for the ability to distinguish for which Carroll's offenses he ought to have been imprisoned. PARENT.

Competent Candidates for School Board.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

ARE Negroes an anomaly so that some one must be especially chosen to understand the problem of educating Negro children? Perish the thought!

It is right (certainly) for a Negro to run for membership in the Board of Education if he or she obtain the signatures necessary for candidacy. But all members of the Board of Education should be men and women of good character, who will not shirk their responsibility to work out the educational salvation of all St. Louis youth regardless of race, rank or creed.

No one ever thinks of electing Germans to look after the interests of Germans, nor Irish to look after the education of Irish, nor Jews to look after the education of Jews. Why elect a Negro to look after the education of Negroes? The four candidates chosen should be chosen to look after the education of St. Louis youth. If they have a narrower concept of their duty, can they be wholly eligible?

Board members should be intelligent enough to understand the problem of educating St. Louis youth—to diagnose whatever ills may afflict the youth; wise enough to prescribe the best treatment; just enough to administer it. With a board of such caliber we—black and white—have for years lived and prospered.

LEARNING FROM CHINA.

For years the Chinese have sent their students to Western universities. We have taught them physics, electrical engineering, chemistry, ballistics, etc., constituting what Bertrand Russell calls our mechanistic civilization. Now China is returning the compliment by taking us into the great university of life.

There is much to learn there. The Chinese are not what we would call a progressive people. They do not have automobiles, telephones and radio sets. Nevertheless, they are a very wise people. They know, for instance, the penalty of bumptiousness, which we have yet to learn. There is the wisdom of a people who have been where they are for 4000 years.

The Chinese do not want to be westernized. If they were they would starve. They do not want to be communized. They tried that more than a thousand years ago, and found it did not work. It has taken them a long time to find out just how they want to live, and they are now defending to death their right to live that way. They have some very great virtues. For instance, they do not want to conquer any other people. They saw all they wanted of imperialism under the great khans—Genghis and Kubla.

The old, experienced, fool-proof civilization of China has what ours has not—an ethical background. We perhaps think little of that, but we will think more of it before we get done with China. They have found it best. The Chinese are not avaricious. They have found that it has its drawbacks. They have few laws. Those few are necessary, and they are enforced. When they catch a thief, whether he steals a payroll or an oil reserve, they promptly cut off his head. Time taught them that necessity.

China has been patient in the face of exploitation. Patience is one of the virtues which time has taught her. A nation 4000 years old is not impulsive. It has taken the Chinese 80 years to move against those who would despoil her, but now she is moving she knows where she is going. The Russians did not know that. They were the Russians. The Chinese are the Chinese. They were slow to believe that we were so foolish as to think we could impose our civilization upon their civilization. They are convinced of it now. You cannot convince China of anything in a day.

A great school, truly. It is much greater than Oxford, Heidelberg, Harvard and some other Western universities to which the Chinese have been going, and we are going to learn more in it.

MR. COOLIDGE AND DANIEL.

Daniel in the lions' den had nothing on Mr. Coolidge. The redoubtable occupant of the White House and man-on-hobby-horseback is going to spend his vacation in Wisconsin.

That ought to be audacious enough to suit the people who have complained that Mr. Coolidge is too wishy-washy for the country and is not sustaining the American tradition. We will wait now to see if Austin Chamberlain will go fishing in Russia, if Mr. Kellogg will take his vacation in Nicaragua, or if Mr. Ford will spend the summer in Jerusalem.

Mr. Coolidge has dared to be a Daniel.

A LESSON FOR THE VIENNESE.

Now that Vienna has seized from New York the distinction of being the cocktail capital of the world, it is altogether proper to issue a warning to the inhabitants of that reputedly gay, frivolous and charming city. That warning will have to do with the ease with which this delightful drink may become debased, and the specific case of such debasement which will be offered will be that which has occurred in the United States under prohibition.

The cocktail, Viennese should first be reminded, was not only born in America, but was here reared from a lusty and promising infancy to a robust and delightful maturity. Under the hands of American bartenders it evolved into all its intriguing variations, from such common sorts as sherry, absinthe, brandy and whisky cocktails to the indisputable big three of cocktaildom—the Bronx, the Manhattan and the Martini. European bartenders began to study the art of mixing it before it had been long invented, and in a short while it was recognized throughout the world as not only the one unquestionably American mixed drink but as a genuine work of art.

Now what has happened to it under prohibition? How has it fallen from its dizzy, imperial heights? No longer composed of the real vermouth, the fine whiskies and the excellent gin of its days of glory, the cocktail is debased indeed. Today it is a truly abominable concoction of nonalcoholic vermouth and that worst of all the devilish products of prohibition—synthetic gin. So bad has it become, in reality, that Americans never, nowadays, repeat the first line of George Ade's ballad, "The cocktail is a pleasant drink," but rather the second, "It's mild and harmless. I don't think."

Let the Viennese heed and take warning.

LIBELING THE FOUNDING FATHERS.

The historians of America have of late found a subject for discussion and dispute which seems to them to be of tremendous importance. In the dispute over the morals of the Founding Fathers, they have risen to all sorts of heights of righteous indignation.

Yet from what does the dispute really arise? From what, to take a specific case, does the disagreement over the moral conduct of Washington arise? Is it occasioned by certainty in the minds of conservative historians that Washington did not commit many of the acts of which Rupert Hughes, W. E. Woodward, and others accuse him? Hardly. Most of the dissenters from the assertions of Hughes and Woodward do not attempt to give sound historical reasons for their dissent. Their reason for differing with these later-day biographers and historians is, as Abe Potash would say, something else again.

This reason, we believe, is simply that the assertions about Washington's morals are repugnant to the peculiarly strait-laced notion of morality held by the old-line historians. By their moral code, the actions which Hughes and Woodward impute to the first President are sins of the deepest dye. To these conservatives, it is actually evil to dance, to use profanity under any condition, to play cards, or to take a sip of any beverage of more than Volsteadian potency—all acts imputed to Washington by his recent biographers.

It is their puritanical conception of morality which is causing the elder historians to put up such a howl over the accusations of the newer historians concerning the morals of the Founding Fathers.

NEW YORK AND ST. LOUIS.

New York City has lost its Police Commissioner, George V. McLaughlin, who has resigned to accept an important position in the industrial world. The office of Police Commissioner in New York corresponds in many essential respects with the presidency of the Police Board in St. Louis. It is an office in which reputations are made or lost. Its most outstanding incumbent, perhaps, was Theodore Roosevelt, who discharged its duties with an energy and picturesqueness that attracted national attention.

It is an appointive office. The Mayor chooses his Police Commissioner. Yet a tradition has developed which has raised this office above the plane of ordinary political patronage. The nomination of Mr. McLaughlin by Mayor Walker was cordially ratified by public sentiment as a strict observance of the tradition. His administration has vindicated the judgment of the Mayor and the public.

Such is the type of Police Commissioner New York gets under home rule. It is a fair presumption, too, that Col. Orrick is the type of Police Board President St. Louis would get under home rule.

We commend that truth and that deduction to the consideration of the legislators at Jefferson City.

We submit to the responsible members of the Legislature, regardless of their party affiliation, that the direction of our Police Department is too important an office to be subject to the whims of factional politics or to "senatorial courtesy."

We submit that the public necessity of St. Louis should dictate the choice of this officer rather than the Governor of Missouri.

Home rule for St. Louis will spare this city and this State a repetition of the present disturbing experience.

THE FOPPIEST ROMAN OF THEM ALL.

Henry Ford, we are told, is the most fastidious dresser in America. He is the only man in the world who has his own tailor shop and who keeps his own private cutter busy making his suits. Does the revelation demand a sartorial? All right. Let's go.

A billion or two in gold and green has Henry stacked away, a feat which has called for many a paean and many a roundelay. His wheels revolve in the Arctic snows and Africa's burning sands, where the Orinoco sleepily flows and on India's coral strands. The wizards of old for whom the mobs used to raise their lusty shouts—Croesus and Dives and Midas et al are a bunch of down and outs. Where others may grow two blades of grass Henry harvests a bale, and naturally it has come to pass that Henry is King of Kale.

That isn't all. Pipe Solomon. There was a nifty guy, the cynosure, we are asked to believe, of almost every eye. From glittering tile to immaculate spats, the bird was comme il faut, he was dancier cri-mon Dieu, oui, oui—he was all of that, yea, bo. But the old boy's glory now fades out to a wrinkled hand-me-down—to Henry Ford he yields his sword, his rep and his rakish crown.

But why go on with this endless tale of pomp and circumstance. Suffice it to say that Henry Ford has a million pair of pants.

BETTER LUCK NEXT TIME.

Having made Nicaragua a winter playground for our armed forces, we must expect a few casualties. The Nicaraguans, like the Chinese, do not like the armed forces of other nations in their country. We cannot wonder at this. We felt that way ourselves about the British at the battle of Bunker Hill.

Admiral Latimer reports that one of our airplanes was fired upon a few days ago by Liberal forces. It was struck by a total of 11 bullets. This did not, it seems, happen while the airplane was in its hangar in one of the neutral zones, but while it was flying over the country on a reconnaissance.

The admiral does not say what the airplane was looking for, because he knew we could guess. It was looking for trouble, and, as usual, it found it. Fortunately, none of these bullets hit the crew. Had that happened, the airplane might have been brought down. Then we would have had a casus belli in Nicaragua. Once we get that, we will not need canal treaties and the like. Better luck next time.

ANTHONY COMSTOCK.

Anthony Comstock has been dead only a dozen years yet, as exhumed in the biography of Heywood Brown and Margaret Leech, he seems a strangely fantastical and anachronistic figure. He was the intellectual contemporary of Jonathan Edwards and the Mathers, and perhaps if he had been born in the age of early Puritanism, we should never have heard of him. He would have been overshadowed by others whose earnestness was equal to his own; by others there were fewer obscene post cards in those days and practically no undraped statues. George Bernard Shaw had not written "Mrs. Warren's Profession." Few knew who Boccaccio was.

It was, however, in the 1870s that the young dry-goods clerk from Connecticut began his violent career as a reformer. We do not think of the 70s as a very wicked era, but Comstock did. No case of down-right prurience has ever been made against him. His private life was utterly clean. But few men have been more successful in rooting for and finding obscenity in all its forms. In casting up the accounts of the many years he spent in prosecuting those who violated the Federal statute which he had put on the books, we find him to be astonishingly successful in immediate results. He sent hundreds to jail, destroyed tons of pornography, and it was said for him that he drove many to suicide.

But what of Anthony Comstock's larger mission, that is, defending the morals of the young? He envisioned himself as a Galahad to this end, but he was only a Don Quixote. Only a man of colossal egotism and fanatical earnestness could be capable of such a conception, and those characteristics were Comstock's hall-marks. It is interesting to us to note that the instrument through which Comstock worked was the law—always the law. After putting his own law in the books, he got a commission as Postoffice Inspector to enforce it. He was always arresting people, he was always appearing in the courtrooms against them.

We do not know how much more good Comstock could have accomplished by moral teaching, but we do know that his attempt to make people good by statute was a tragic failure. He has many successors, none perhaps as violent and colorful as he was, but at the same time serious imitators. We recommend to such a careful reading of Mr. Brown and Miss Leech's book. There is the record of a life which inspires both horror and pity.

The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

GOV. SMITH'S PROSPECTS.

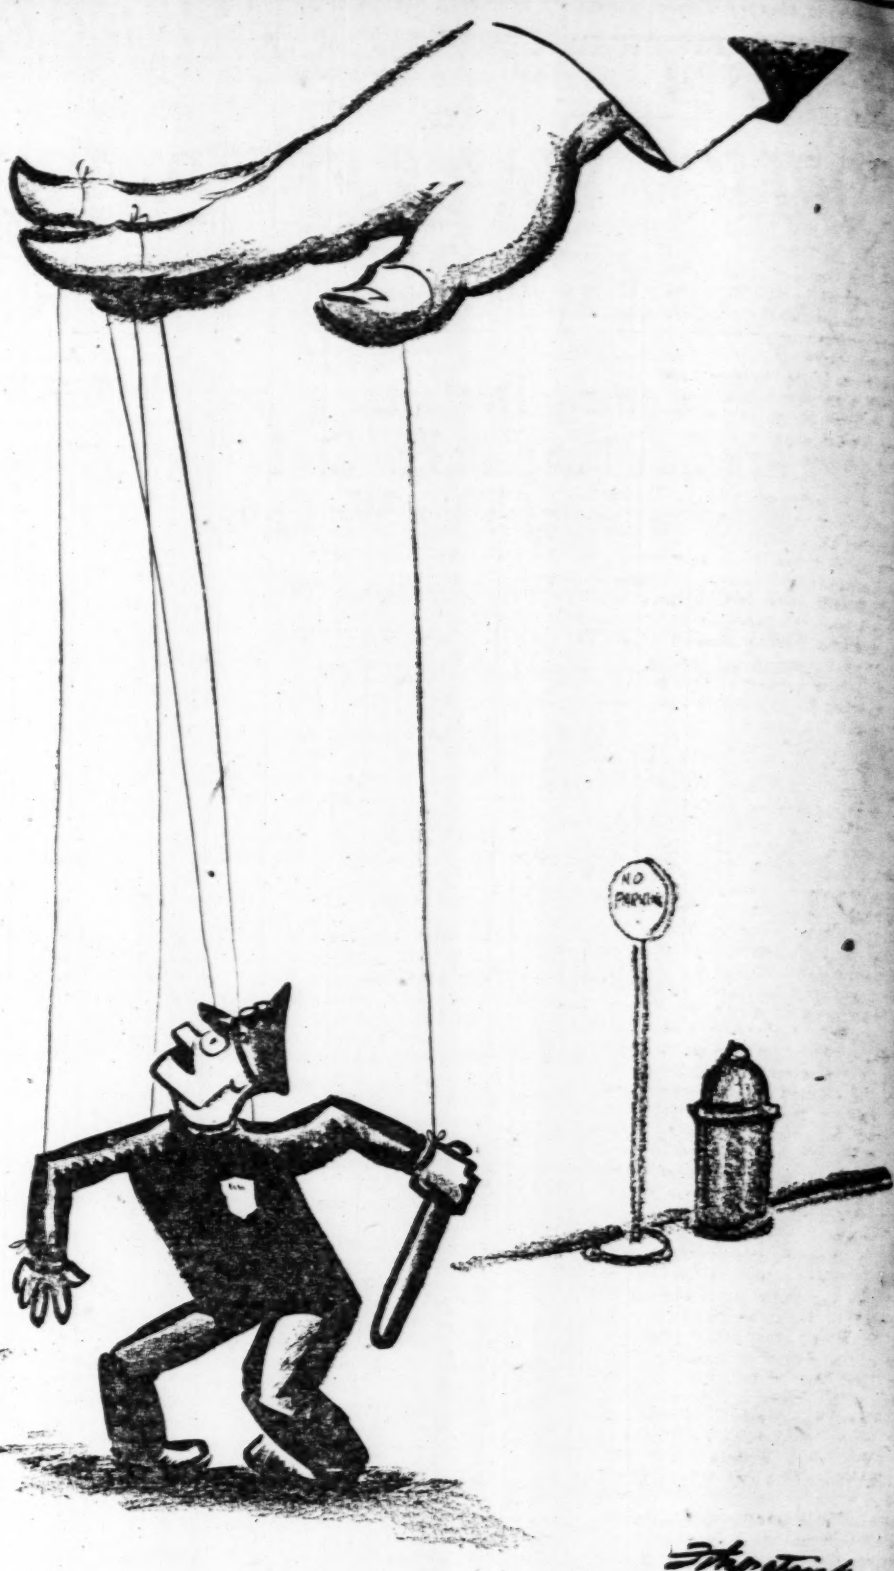

From the New Republic.

IF Gov. Smith is to have any chance for the nomination, he cannot continue for long to remain silent on questions about which his Catholicism may bias his American statesmanship. He is on the whole right, for the present, in subordinating his candidacy for the Democratic nomination to the performance of his job as Governor, but his work as Governor need not interfere with an occasional speech which will allow his fellow citizens to search his mind about questions of national politics which he has hitherto ignored. If he continues his refusal to speak, he will increasingly justify the inference that he has something to conceal. . . . He cannot too repeatedly and explicitly explain that his political acts are not, and will not be, subject to undue influence by his Church, that he will not regard Mexico's policy toward Catholicism as any reason for outlawing the Mexican Government and that, for the present, he is in favor of a system of public education which is free from ecclesiastical control. . . . Gov. Smith is one of the handful of American politicians who believe in democracy and can realize its better aspirations. In his own State he has persuaded millions of humble and ignorant people to vote for good government. He is the common man's hostess to power and control. Ward politicians are kept out of mischief (sometimes) by loyalty to him. He has testified at great personal cost to his belief in freedom of speech, and he is one of the few political leaders in the East who are alive to the importance of effective public control of electric power. With no religion to interfere, he would run a good chance of being next President of the United States, but as an unexplained, unmitigated Catholic, he is sure to be defeated. With no disloyalty to his Church or affront to his own conscience, Gov. Smith can surely make it plain that he is willing to answer any honest and pertinent question about the relation between his religion and his politics. That is the way to lay the ghost of the Catholic menace and to root the prejudice out of the better part of the popular mind. Not until it is as easy to discuss Catholicism as it now is to discuss Methodism will a certain portion of the American people recover from fears of the "Roman menace," and until it does begin to recover, a Catholic's eligibility to the presidency will remain a rhetorical quantity. To bring about this recovery is a problem in realistic political strategy which cannot safely for Gov. Smith's interests be postponed much longer.

THE NEW TURKEY.

From the Atlanta Journal.

TURKEY renders a magnanimous answer to our Senate's rejection of the treaty of Lausanne. Instead of resenting that cold shoulder or making trouble for Americans in her domain, she grants them "the same treatment as nationals of other countries," and extends the agreement under which relations of amity with our Government have been maintained. Whatever the merit of the Lausanne treaty—and it is significant that many who first opposed afterwards favored it—there is no denying the grace of the present gesture from Ankara. "If Turkey," remarks the New York Times, "continues in her attempt to show herself wor-

THE OLD INHABITANT LAMENT.

Alas, we two shall meet no more
Down at the Planters' parlor floor!
Nor lunch on Benedictine eggs
In some quiet corner of MacTeague's;
Long since the Southern went its way,
While Faust's is part of yesterday;
Now stands a towering hostelry;
All have passed into eclipse
Where once we two touched steins—and Lips!

Though I would save a spot or two
To stage a sentimental rendezvous,
The future does, indeed, look dark—
Dear Lord, take care of Forest Park!

Considering the Orrick row and the archduchess, our State "solons" sadly conclude that it is impossible to "suit" everybody.

Objection to Senator Borah as an after-dinner speaker hinges on the fact that he is an "obstructionist." An obstructionist must be one who prevents fools from running in where angels fear to tread.

NOTES ON A LATE ARRIVAL.
Spring, which begins officially on March 21, may start any time between Feb. 2 and July 4. If it begins on Feb. 2, it is known as a mild winter and the Republican party assumes the credit. If winter lingers, people write letters to the paper explaining the phenomenon; Tom Hefflin says a wet cat got into the White House and Wayne Wheeler confers with Roy Haynes. Spring is the only season during which people do not make remarks about the weather.

It is a new world to American youth, and a bad one. Self-indulgence has taken the place of self-restraint. Law isn't a substitute for character. Mr. Volstead couldn't put conscience in American citizens. He could put rebellion. He could give an added value to intoxication, and he has. He could make liquor harder to get and viler to drink, and he did. He also could make it more sought after, and he has.

Angell on Popular Thought

THE PUBLIC MIND, by Norman Angell. (Dutton.)
CURELY one of the greatest curiosities in the side show of human thought is the idea that only enough intelligence can be gotten together the result will be wisdom. Nobody accepts the idea when thus baldly stated, but a large section of the world acts in this manner, and that upon matters of most vital importance to the human race. It is only one manifestation of our pathetic human tendency to measure all things by quantitative scale. And have we not in modern science a most powerful defender of this method? There never was a time in recorded history when the million-dollar method was so near universal acceptance as now. "They" is the tyrant of the world, and, judging by its judgments, this million-headed monster is certainly far from wise.

In "The Public Mind," Norman Angell has undertaken to analyze the mental processes of this tyrant. "They," and he does so, not in the abstract manner, as do the crowd psychologists, but by the dispassionate examination of the mass mind and their results. He examines the mental processes of the common crowd acting as a dominating force on questions that cannot possibly be understood by the individuals of which the crowd is composed.

He shows how common regions of emotion overcome all power to think justly, as during the emotional period of the war; and how eagerly the wildest tale is generally accepted if only it coincides with the dominant madness. Thus far, it might seem to some a hasty score of the lower social classes that the trouble was all in the "masses," but Mr. Angell proceeds to examine the mental processes of that portion of the public which is generally supposed to be "educated." What he finds, in general, is simply the same helplessness in the grip of contagious emotion that was to be noted in the lower social strata, and he presents overwhelming evidence to that effect, citing the acts and utterances of many world-leaders, and the fate of those who strove for simple sanity.

What is generally lacking, Mr. Angell tells us, in all strata of society, is "a certain self-discipline, a sense of the social and moral obligation to apply intelligence to the future, and which, if applied, would deprive us of the satisfaction of some emotional appetite such as vengeance, or of our moral indignation founded."

STRING QUARTET HEARD IN CONCERT

New York Organization Gives Last of Chamber Music Society's Programs.

By THOMAS R. SHERMAN.
THE New York String Quartet proved itself an instrumental ensemble of the finest quality in a concert given last night at the Helton Auditorium. This concert was sponsored by the St. Louis Chamber Music Society, an organization which devotes itself to the dissemination of the art of chamber music in parvo.

Whether there has been enough public interest in these concerts to justify a more extended program next season has not yet been determined. Lovers of this type of music must give their verdict.

The New York players—Messrs. Cadek, Risikovsky, Schwab and Baksa—are individual artists of obvious superior talents. Their individual excellences are, in fact, a little too obvious, for the quartet played with precision, intelligence and emotion, it still lacks that gracious balance which is necessary to absolute transparency.

The Haydn Quartet in G Minor suffered particularly from this defect. There was too much thrumming of the strings, and a competition that should be remarkable in its suavity and the brilliance of the first violin sounded in too great contrast to the more somber tone of the second, especially in the first passages. But these deficiencies will probably disappear with greater seasoning.

Besides the Haydn number the ensemble played Beethoven's F minor quartet, and Dvorak's "American" quartet, and in return the heartfelt applause brought to a close the evening's concert. Eugene Goosen's "On the March," Albéniz's "Spanish Dance," Bizet's "Adagio" and the Boccherini "Minuet."

The ensemble work was, on the whole, more successful in the ensemble than in the solo parts. The Albanian number was handled with just the restraint necessary to emphasize the romantic allure.

MISSISSIPPIAN LAZARO DIES

Mississippi Representative Had Been Elected to Eighth Term.

WASHINGTON, March 29.—Representative Ladislav Lazaro of Mississippi died today from complications after an operation. He was 54 years old.

THE PUBLIC MIND, by Norman Angell. (Dutton.)

THELY one of the greatest curiosities in the side show of human thought is the idea that only enough intelligence can be gotten together the result will be wisdom. Nobody accepts the idea when thus baldly stated, but a large section of the world acts by it nevertheless, and that upon matters of vital importance to the human race. It is only one manifestation of our pathetic human tendency to measure all things by quantitative scale. And have we not in modern science a most powerful defense of this? There never was a time in recorded history when the million-man method was so nearly universally accepted as now. "They" is the tyrant of the world, and judging by its judgments, this million-headed monster is certainly far from wise.

In "The Public Mind," Norman Angell has undertaken to analyze the mental processes of this tyrant. "They," he does so, not in an abstract manner, as do the modern psychologists, but by discussing concrete examples of mass judgment and their results. He examines the mental processes of the common crowd acting as a dominating force on questions that cannot possibly be understood by individuals of which the crowd is composed. He shows how conceptions of emotion overcome all other to think justly, as during the emotional period of the war; and how eagerly the wildest tale is generally accepted if only it coincides with the dominant madness. Thus far, it might seem to some that the author is merely a scold, but Mr. Angell proceeds to examine the mental processes of that portion of the public which is generally supposed to be educated. What he finds, in general, is simply the same helplessness in the grip of contagious emotions that was to be noted in the lower social strata, and he presents overwhelming evidence to that effect, citing the acts and utterances of many world-leaders, and the acts of those who strove for simple justice.

What is generally lacking, Mr. Angell tells us, in all strata of society, is a certain self-discipline, a sense of the social and moral obligation to apply intelligence to the situation in which our passions are involved, and which, if applied, would deprive us of the satisfaction of some emotional appetite such as vengeance, or show what we call moral indignation to be ill-founded.

That is a very good line for anyone to remember; but unless one has already achieved a certain unusual degree of development, he will not remember the line in a crisis.

At this point in the author's argument, the situation becomes blue enough; but very valiantly Mr. Angell proceeds to discuss a remedy. He shows what is wrong with the prevalent notion that "more education" is what the world needs, by which is generally meant more schooling of the sort we have—the sort in which factual learning dominates. What is needed, he argues convincingly, is a universal educational scheme calculated to result in control of primitive instincts; not less culture of the mind, perhaps, but far more culture of the heart.

But who is to institute that sort of education so long as "They" believe in values not related to that sort of education?

A REPORTER FOR LINCOLN. By Ida M. Tarbell. (Macmillan.)

Miss Tarbell here sets forth in story form the adventures of Henry E. Wing, who as a reporter for the New York Tribune during the last year of the Civil War, became intimately acquainted with Lincoln. The story is based on letters and articles by Mr. Wing and upon many conversations the author has had with him. It is an important Lincoln item.

FEAR. By John Rathbone Oliver. (Macmillan.)

The story of a business man in the grip of a fear neurosis and of how he finally escaped into sanity and health. There can be no doubt that almost everyone could get some good out of this book, and very many must have great need of it. More and more books of a popular nature, dealing with the treatment of physical disorders from the standpoint of mental disorder, are appearing every season; and it is interesting to note how, though they all begin with science, they generally end with a very ancient religious conception.

At an attractive luncheon given today at their home, on the Barnes road, announcement was made of the engagement of Miss Jane Marshall Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emmett V. Thompson, and Clifford Pieper of New York, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Conrad Pieper of Brooklyn, N. Y.

Miss Thompson is a graduate of Mary Institute and Miss Bennett's School, in Milbrook, N. Y. She came out three seasons ago and served as a maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet ball that year. Mr. Pieper was educated at Columbia University, in New York. The guests were Miss Elizabeth Smith, Miss Claire Garneau, Miss Ruth Curby, Miss Sara Tyler, Miss Elizabeth Dyer, Mrs. David D. Walker III and Mrs. Donald Wilcox.

Miss Thompson has just returned from a trip to New York, where she visited Mr. Pieper's sister, Mrs. S. Harvey Day, and Mrs. Lawrence Battle, who was Miss Pieper's last night for St. Louis.

The wedding probably will take place in the fall.

A group of the socially prominent young married set will depart Saturday to sail Tuesday on the Berengaria for two weeks of travel in Europe. The party includes Mr. and Mrs. Howard V. Stephens of 5162 Lindell boulevard, Mr. and Mrs. Bradford Shinkle of 48 Portland place, and Mrs. Shinkle's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. James Russell Forgan of Chicago, with several friends of Mr. and Mrs. Forgan's from that city. They will divide their time between London and Paris. Mrs. Forgan was Miss Ada Johnson of St. Louis.

Mrs. Leonard Matthews Morton of 423 Westgate avenue gave a dinner party last night for Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Jenney of Boston, who, with their two children, are visiting Mrs. Jenney's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Morrison of 2 Kingsbury place.

Mr. and Mrs. P. Taylor Bryan Jr. have returned from a winter's visit in Pass Christian, Miss. They will take possession May 1 of their new home at 4629 Pershing avenue, which they purchased from Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Niedringhaus.

Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Stanard of Brentmoor will return home Friday from California, where they have spent the winter. They divided their time between Coronado and Pasadena, Cal.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanard's daughter, Mrs. Joseph Ramsay Brown of Dallas, Tex., who has been visiting her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin T. Stanard of 4512 West Pine boulevard, for a few days, departed yesterday for New York to meet the Berengaria, which arrives Friday, bringing her daughter, Miss Margaret Brown, from a trip to Europe with Miss Florence Ludington, daughter of Elliot K. Ludington, chaperoned by Mrs. William J. Porter.

Mrs. Brown and her daughter will spend a week in New York, and another week in St. Louis before returning to Dallas. Mrs. Donaldson Lambert departed Monday to meet Miss Ludington, and they, too, will be in New York a few days. The young women will be debutantes next season, and Miss Brown will visit in St. Louis.

Mrs. Helen J. Pettengill of the St. Louis Country Club grounds will return home today from Chicago, where she has been visiting her son, Dempster Murphy, for two weeks.

Dr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Allison, of Boston, formerly of St. Louis, are guests at the Ambassador Hotel in Atlantic City.

Edmund Temple Allen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford R. Allen of 2010 Longfellow boulevard, has arrived from Cheshire, Conn., where he is a student at the Roxbury School, to spend a week with his parents. Mr. and Mrs. Allen and their son will leave in a week for Washington, D. C., where Mr. and Mrs. Allen will visit two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Menziesworth Sr. have given up their apartment in the St. Regis and will make their home for two months at the Forest Park Hotel. They will sail June 10 for Europe, to be gone six months.

Mrs. R. A. Pendleton, who has been with her daughter, Mrs. W. H. Ray, of Chicago for a year, is visiting her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Pendleton, of the Adlon Apartments.

A card party will be given today by the Woman's Auxiliary of the American Legion, Jackson Johnson Post, at 2 p. m. at post headquarters, Lindell boulevard and Boyle avenue.

Miss Katherine Koerber, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Koerber of Hampton Park, and Miss Martha Carter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Carter of 4497 Forest Park boulevard, who are students at Holton Arms School, Washington, D. C., have arrived to spend the spring vacation with their families.

Miss Florence Moore, daughter of Mr. Richard Moore of 4421 Westmoreland place, who is registrar at Wells College, Aurora, N. Y., has arrived to pass the spring vacation with her mother, Mrs. Eleanor Schoenberger of Aurora, accompanied Miss Moore home, and is her guest.

Mr. and Mrs. Clinton L. Whittemore of 6420 Forsyth boulevard, their daughter, Miss Elise, and their son, Clinton Jr., who are making a journey around the world, are in Carlsbad, India, according to cards received by St. Louis friends.

A number of young girls have been chosen as ushers for the Rotary Club revue, which will be given this evening for the benefit of the Rotary fund for crippled and dependent children, at Moolah Temple. They are: Misses Audrey Lecoutour, Bernice Fraumethal, Ruth Crowley, Dorothy Hummel, Edith MacCrowley, Helen Biggers, Ruth Biggers, Ruth Music, Nell Bramble, Mabel Biederman, Jean Goin, Ruth Daugerty, Ruth Tevis Treouthill, Elva Mae Mercer, Frances Thiel, Ann Settle, Ellen Connors, Mary Branch, Elizabeth Gartner, Blanch Bischoff, Catherine Sands, Adele Pollard, Elise Datz, Catherine Sears, Georgia Leaver and Audrey Leaver. A dance will follow the revue, in which skits, songs, dances and specialty acts will be featured.

COOLIDGE AND SENATOR EDGE DISCUSS CANAL LEGISLATION

Intimate President Will Submit Recommendations at Next Session of Congress.

WASHINGTON, March 29.—After a call at the White House today, Senator Edge (Rep.) of New Jersey said President Coolidge would undertake an investigation of Nicaraguan and Panama Canal questions with a view to recommending legislation at the next session of Congress.

Construction of additional facilities either at the Panama Canal, or by a new route across Nicaragua was urged by Edge. He said he explained to Mr. Coolidge the necessity for additional facilities connecting the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans. A third lock at Panama would cost $125,000,000, Edge estimated, and a new canal across Nicaragua would require about $500,000,000 in addition to the $3,000,000 already paid for land.

A canal through Nicaragua, he said, would have a beneficial effect on the political as well as on the economic development of the nation.

Senator Edge has just returned from Central America. He did not visit Nicaragua.

Policeman Found Shot to Death. PHILADELPHIA, March 29.—His skull battered and with four bullet wounds, his head, Lieut. Elwood Gainer of the Lancaster (Pa.) Police Department, was found dead on the Hook road in Delaware County. Authorities said Gainer had been kidnapped in Lancaster.

Mother of Six Slain by Brother. By the Associated Press. JOHNSTOWN, Pa., March 29.—Taking exception, police said, to his sister's expressions regarding his continued unemployment and contemplated marriage, John Malon, 44 years old, admitted stabbing her five times. The woman, Mrs. Alexander McMillan, 42, of Colver, near here, and mother of six children, died shortly afterward.

Our Part in the Life of EDWARD LINDON

It started when we mailed a letter to Baby Edward Lindon, telling him to send Daddy down right away to open a savings account.

Eight years later the father died. Ten years after that his Life Insurance Trust reached out of the past and sent Edward to college.

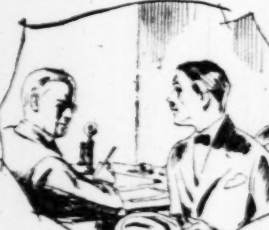

No wonder the boy started to save as soon as he started to work. No wonder he bought life insurance. He hadn't picked up experience. It had been ground into him.

Then came hard years—years of getting started—years of building a business and a reputation. He saved. He invested. He built a line of bank credit.

Edward Lindon was tackling things in the right way, and we were privileged to help him.

Not because he used our service, but because he did things in the right way and used our service, his business prospered. He never grew too big to ask our advice. We never grew too big to give him personal attention.

The time came when he had two incomes—one from his business, one from his investments. We had helped him develop the business. We had sold him the investments.

...the pendulum swings back, bringing the dependence of childhood or the playtime of childhood....

To Edward Lindon it brought playtime again, and more need for "Mercantile Service." We handled his securities and real estate while he took a two-year trip around the world.

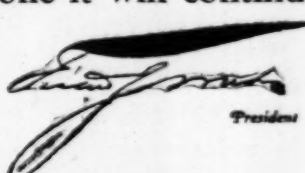

And so will it continue, through his life and afterward. He has intrusted to us the accomplishment of several projects which he cannot stay to finish. The "Safe Executor" will finish them.

This is but a brief example of the part we can play in the life of one man or woman. And yet, some look on a Trust Company as a mechanical place of money and marble, steel and stone.

EDWARD LINDON is not a man, but just a name chosen to represent one of one hundred thousand patrons, and in the presentation to bring out this one point: No matter what financial service you want, and no matter what time in your life you want it, we can give it.... and after you have gone it will continue.... if you have willed it so....

can be figured out to be some-less than those by Great Brit-debt owed to us by Great Brit-
But the deficiency is slight.
all intents and purposes it may aid that Great Britain met us
our own ground. Since the United States took the view that this was a plain and simple debt.

Great Britain, in a period of acute depression in her industries, of painful recovery from enormous losses, of sad uncertainty about the future, conformed to the letter of the law as laid down by the United States. No complaint, no argu-
if you will have it so, let it be so.

When it comes to the other countries, however, our procedure has been different. With—Belgium, Italy, France, not to mention the smaller countries, we have dealt in quite another spirit. With them
we have regarded what is called their capacity to pay. Ordinarily, when one deals with a debtor and proceeds on the basis of the letter of the law, one does not regard his capacity to pay. Or it is regarded only if he is bankrupt and the creditor is in the position of simply taking what is left of his assets.

We have not acted in this way
with Belgium, Italy, France. We accepted to a compromise—even proposed it. With all these countries the compromise means, whatever be the actuarial method of computation, that we are accepting very much less than the amount of our loans. Congress has ratified the compromises (all except that with France still to be ratified by France herself). Thereby it would seem that Congress has come to a state of mind not the same as that which prevailed when the original debt settlement act of 1922
was passed.

This acceptance of something other than the letter of the law would seem to carry with it an admission that, after all, the principles of settlement are not easy to define. Shall we treat these obligations as ordinary debts to be collected in the same way and in the same spirit
as debts between man and man,
and have no regard for past community of spirit, for good relations in the future, for things other than the bare face of the contract?

The Nature of War Loans.
 We are often told that it is healthy for people to pay their debts; may it be to their own advantage, if they wish to keep their credit good and perhaps borrow again another time. So it is, no doubt, in the ordinary transactions of trade. It is so, too, as regards those international loans which are extended by individuals (banking houses and their customers) to foreign Governments. Otherwise the foundations of business credit would be dried up. But were our loans to the Allies of this character? Were we moved by any such considerations as apply to ordinary loans?
And were the Allies, on their part? Let us not forget the past,
the very recent past.

Surely we made these loans not as investors, in the way of a bargaining contract, but as peoples to peoples for mutual aid. We thought it our duty, and our interest also,
to stand with the Allies in the dreadful struggle. For the first year of our participation the only effective thing we could do was to put at their disposal our supplies of goods. The form of loan was chosen because it was the easiest and quickest way to get the thing done. Doubtless in the rush and pressure of the crisis no deliberate choice was made. It was all a matter of getting things done. And so it was with the Allies. Loans
if you will; anything that brings instant help.

When Dickering Is Thrust Aside.
 Consider the loans for a moment,
as it has been urged they should be considered, from the point of view of the debtor's own ultimate interest. Let him repay for his own good, we are told; if he repays now he will be able to borrow another time. Quite true as regards ordinary business operations. But in the stress and ferment of war
is any such reflection or reckoning ever made by either party? Does anyone suppose that, if another such conflict should come (God forbid!) and if we were again compelled to align ourselves, we should hesitate to do anything and everything that might help the cause
we deemed right; that we should debate whether to lend or not lend,
to give or not give, to go ahead or to dicker, because once upon a time, in the forgotten past, another loan had been made, also in a great war, and had not been treated either by us or by our associates as a business contract? It is in no such spirit as this that individuals or peoples deal with each other when war comes on.

Where Sentiment Enters.
 Reasoning and cold-blooded calculation, however, help little on the aspect of the case we are now considering—the equities. We get scant aid from any analysis of the bases of contractual obligations, from historical precedent, from economic lessons. The matter reaches into higher realms. However, we deceive ourselves by focusing attention on the measurable gain or loss, whether for ourselves or for our allies, we cannot but be moved at bottom by conscience—by sentiment if you please.
My own conscience is not easy.
My sense of self-respect as an American is not happy. I find myself admiring the attitude of Great Britain and not entirely admiring our own attitude. For many dreadful months we were unable to aid our allies with anything except money and loans. We did this cheerfully. Surely we then had no thought of being engaged in purely commercial transactions.
We gloried in being a rich and powerful country, and thereby in a position to aid our almost exhausted allies and friends. Has that spirit entirely disappeared?

Let it not be forgotten that Great Britain also made great loans to her allies—our allies; and that she is dealing with her debtors in quite a different way from ours.
She lent almost identically as much to France as we did—something over $3,000,000,000. She lent much more to Italy than we did: $3,000,- 000,000, as against half as much by ourselves. She has come to settlements with them similar in plan to ours (payments spread over a long series of years). But there is a marked difference in degree, and a difference even more marked in spirit. She, too, is willing to accept annual installments; but the sums are very much less than those we call for. They are not half so much from France, barely a quarter as much from Italy. And—what is more on my conscience—she agrees to reduce these payments exactly in the proportion in which her own payments to us may be reduced. If we cut down, she will also cut down to the same extent.
Early in the post-war negotiations

she announced that she would proceed on this basis; and thus she is still ready to proceed.

An Eye to the Future.
 One's attitude on the whole question is necessarily influenced by one's hopes or fears, confidence or despair, about the post-war situation. Did we really do well to enter on the war? Are we quite dissatisfied about the consequences? Does the future still seem as dark and uncertain as it did three or four years ago. He who believes it was all in vain,
that the world was bad and still is as bad as before, will acquiesce in turning our backs on the old allies.
He will be disposed to deal with them at arm's length, collect what can be collected, disregard their plight, disregard, too, any feelings
they may have about us. But he who believes that good is stirring,
and that the world may be starting on better ways; that something is due from us to improve on the bad past—he will ask himself how this problem can be dealt with so as to promote the good that stirs
and foster between nations a spirit of mutual help.

I have no proposal to submit.
The time is not ripe for conferences, negotiations, revisions. We in the United States have not rid ourselves of the lamentable partisan divisions and entanglements which followed the war. At the present juncture, too, political and economic conditions in the agricultural regions of the Midwest are not conducive to a rereckoning.
Things will run their present
course for awhile, and the debt remittances will continue to come to us. None the less we may pause and reflect, give time for the internal dimensions of the moment

to del out, bethink ourselves soberly what we may wish to do in the end.

Expects U. S. to Reconsider.
 Sooner or later we shall have occasion to reconsider. The time may come shortly. The factor in the case which is most likely to lead to reconsideration is the progress of the German reparations payments. These payments, under the Dawes plan, are rapidly approaching their maximum. By 1929 they will reach the highest sum which Germany is called upon to produce—namely, the sum of $225,000,000 a year. Without entering into any detailed discussion of the reparations program, or of the difficulties which it may encounter, we must face the possibility—may, the probability—that when the German obligations thus reach a head, and when the actual transfer of the large sums to the Allies needs to be continued year
after year, a new stage will be entered on. A revision of the whole international situation will then be on the cards.

Hazardous though it is to make prediction, I believe that before many years—perhaps within a few
—some arrangement for a single great lump-sum payment by Germany will be brought forward. The whole of this series of long-drawn-out, international remittances, stretching over half a century and more, between ourselves and the Allies, between the Allies, and between Germany and the Allies, will then present itself in a new light.
For our part, are we resolved to insist unrelentingly on what the settlements now prescribe for the long period of 62 years? The war

soon will cease to mean anything for our daily doings. The material sacrifices to which it led have been almost forgotten; within a decade or so the last remembrance of them, in the way of taxes and budget burdens, will have disappeared. To the younger generation
it is already a matter of the dim past.

"Legacies of Disaster."
 Can we think it probable that these long-strung payments will continue to have any meaning to the peoples involved, other than that they are a burden to one side
and a dubious benefit to the other?
Later generations will regard the question of fitness and justice from their own point of view. Will our people then believe the debt payments to be just? We are rich, and we are rapidly getting richer.
Prosperous beyond anything hitherto imagined in the history of mankind, we now are preparing to receive, through half a century and more, payments from peoples much less prosperous. These annual streams of goods, legacies of a great historic disaster, will then be related to no services of ours, to no discernible obligations of theirs. They may be reminders of a high past, but may also be evidence of an unworthy present.

If the rest of the world wishes to sweep away the wreckage of the past, clear the decks, and start fresh and unencumbered, shall we remain aloof? I can feel no elevation of spirit, no pride in the position we are now taking. When the day for a new alignment comes,
how shall America take her stand?

"I didn't know the danger till my doctor told me"

"Like so many mothers, I think my baby girl is the most precious one in all the world. Toward the end of her first year she became fretful and naturally I was very much distressed. In despair I consulted my doctor. The first thing he asked me was how I washed the baby's clothes.

"Then he went on to tell me how cruelly irritating harsh, shrunken woolens are to tender little bodies. He said, too, that shrunken woolens retard the proper growth of bones. He advised me to wash my baby's woolens in Lux because it won't shrink woolens. I use Lux now for washing all of baby's clothes and her disposition is sweet and cheerful all the time. I am certainly grateful to Lux!"

"... Why, it has washed like new, dear!"

"One of the dresses in my trousseau was a smart new flannel. The first time I wore it a passing motor splashed mud on it in a dozen places. I was in despair for that particular dress was more becoming than any other.

"I immediately called Mother on the telephone to ask her what I could do to save it. She told me she was sure Lux would cleanse it beautifully.

"So (rather fearfully) I washed it in Lux, not really expecting that even Lux could make it wearable again. To my joy, my adorable dress looked as good as new!"

CITIZENS' SCHOOL BOARD COMMITTEE
ISSUES PLATFORM

Address to Voters Says
Opinion Is General That Something Is Wrong
With the Present System.

The Citizens' School Board Committee, which is supporting four candidates for the four places on the Board of Education to be filled
at the election next Tuesday, in a platform and address to the voters adopted unanimously late yesterday, says: "We regret to observe that the opinion is general that something is wrong, gravely wrong,
with our school system or management."

Those candidates it recommends are best fitted to serve the city's children, the committee feels. Its platform follows:

"We are interested in candidates for the School Board only because we are interested in the children of St. Louis. Here are 110,000 children who are the pride of our homes and the wealth of our city.
They are to control the city tomorrow. What they are to be depends upon the preparation and training
we give them. The character of their preparation and training depends upon the kind of schools we provide for them. The schools in turn are what the Board of Education makes them."

Schools Subject of Criticism.
"A few years ago the school system of St. Louis was known and recognized as one of the best in the United States. It was the pride of our city and the model of other cities. It is charged that it is not so today. We are informed that it is the subject of grave criticism at home and in other parts of the country."

"Whether the criticisms be just or unjust, it behooves us all, as friends and lovers of the children of our great city, to exercise the soundest judgment and the highest patriotism in selecting members of the School Board."

"Ten candidates have filed for places on the board. We have considered them all solely from the standpoint of their fitness to serve our city's children as members of the Board of Education."

The Candidates Favored.
"The four whom we believe to be best fitted are Miss Eleanor D.
Horton, A. S. Werremeyer, Myrt
A. Rollins and Dr. D. C. Todd. All are citizens of high character and have filled positions of responsibility with credit and efficiency."

"Miss Horton is a business woman of wide experience. She was educated in our public schools,
was a teacher in them and an instructor in St. Louis playgrounds.
She is a past president of the Town Club and member of the Wednesday Club. She is vice president of an investment firm."

"Mr. Rollins, a lawyer, has been president of the St. Louis Public School Patrons' Association. He has been a member of the Board of Education for two years. All voters doubtless know his commendable record in that office."

"Mr. Werremeyer is a successful business man. He is president of the Beaumont High School Patrons' Association. He is past president of the following organizations:
North St. Louis Business Men's Association, Missouri Retail Merchants' Association, Blair-Howard School Patrons' Association, Ben Franklin Club and Eighteenth Ward Republican Club, and a member of the Citizens' Supervisory Bond Issue Committee. He is a printer and stationer."

"Dr. Todd is a prominent physician and has been noted for his leadership in municipal athletics.
He was one of the pioneers in the movement for playgrounds and is exceptionally equipped for the direction of physical education."

Chairman Remmers of the Republican City Committee told the organization last night he expected to follow his own conscience in voting for School Board candidates, and suggested that the other committee members do likewise. The committee has refrained as a body
from endorsing any of the candidates.

THREE MEN ACCUSED OF RECEIVING STOLEN PROPERTY
Negro, Who Confessed Theft of Metal, Used as Witness Against Junk Dealers.

A decision by the Circuit Attorney's office to use a petty thief in an attempt to prosecute "fences"
appeared today in the application for bench warrants charging three junk men with receiving stolen property from a Negro, William Weakley, 2203 Walnut street.
The three charged as "fences"
are Morris Fishman, 1731 Biddle street; Meyer Holtzman, 54 years old, of 2436 Belt avenue, and his son, Isadore, 31, of 2626 Burd avenue. The Holtzmans operate a junk yard at 2700 North Broadway and Fishman runs a yard at the Biddle street address.

Weakley, who was arrested
March 7, admitted stealing 28 pigs
of babbitt metal from the Great Western Smelting Co., 4041 Park avenue, and selling it to Fishman.
Seven of the stolen pigs, bearing the stamp of the Great Western Smelting Co. and its "Anchor" trade mark, were later found in an icebox at the Holtzmans' junk yard.

SPELLS OF CONSTIPATION

Black-Draught, Taken at the First Danger Signal, Is Found to Prevent Headache, Gas Accumulation, Etc.

London, Ky.—Mrs. Elizabeth Spivy, who lives near here, makes the following statement:

"I have found Black-Draught an excellent medicine to use for constipation. Relief is quickly obtained and no bad after-effects followed its use. I have used Black-Draught in my home for thirty years, and have thoroughly tested its merits.

"Frequently I am troubled with spells of constipation which probably come from lack of exercise. A bad headache quickly follows and sometimes pain from gas accumulated in the intestines, bad breath and general discomfort.

"I have learned to prevent such troubles by taking Black-Draught at the first danger signal. Often my diet is such that the digestive tract does not function properly, thus causing constipation.

"Black-Draught has proved so effective, at such times, that I always keep it on hand in the family medicine chest.

"It is a regular medicine with us. We have often recommended it to neighbors and friends, because we believe in passing helpful knowledge along to others. Try it. Sold everywhere. Costs only 25c for 25 doses.

STOMACH TROUBLE AFFECTED HIS HEART

Could Hardly Breathe. Eats Anything Now, Thanks to Milks Emulsion.

"For years I suffered with indigestion, constipation and accumulation of gas which affected my heart at times so I could hardly get my breath. I lived on raw eggs, toasted bread and hot water, and still suffered. I tried several doctors for three years, but since taking Milks Emulsion I have improved so that I can do my own farm and store work. Can eat most anything; have gained 10 pounds, and everybody speaks of how it has helped me."—A. Henley, Rio Vista, Va., R. I. Box 157.

Milks Emulsion restores healthy, natural bowel action, doing away with all need of pills and physics. It promotes appetite and quickly puts the digestive organs in shape to assimilate food, thus building flesh and strength, which are Nature's only aids in conquering germs and repairing the effects of wasting diseases.

This is the only solid emulsion made, and so palatable that it is eaten with a spoon like ice cream. Wonderful for weak, sickly children.

No matter how severe your case, you are urged to try Milks Emulsion. If not satisfied with results, your money will be promptly refunded. Price 60c and $1.20 per bottle. Sold by druggists everywhere.

ALLEGES $25,000 DEAL BROUGHT $9,000,000

Suit Says Failure of Ward's Baking Merger Made Money for Friends.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch. NEW YORK, March 30.—A suit for an accounting and a receivership discloses how the failure of the Ward baking merger a year ago enabled friends of William B. Ward to make an alleged profit of $9,000,000 on an original investment of $25,000.

The suit also alleges on information and belief, that negotiations are under way for a merger of the Commander-Larabee flour milling interests with the Pillsbury Flour Co., Inc.

Kenneth H. Bristol, plaintiff, is suing John H. Dahn and the Clifford-Dahn Corporation for a quarter interest in more than $9,000,000 profit which he says the Dahns' friendship with Ward earned them.

$9,000,000 From $25,000. In another action, against Dahn alone, Bristol alleges that the $25,000 which started their careers as flour barons was made through their joint operations in stock of the General Baking Corporation. Bristol is seeking a separate accounting from Dahn of their alleged profits from the sale of General Baking stock.

He says that in January, 1926, after the Federal Trade Commission complained against Ward's Corporation, the Continental Baking Corporation, as a combination in restraint of trade, Ward told Dahn it would be advisable for the Continental to dispose of its interests in the Larabee Flour Mills Co. of Kansas City to some one friendly to Ward interests.

Dahn and Bristol had $29,000 from their joint venture in General Baking stock and with $25,000 of this paid down, Bristol alleges, they acquired the $4,000,000 Larabee corporation. Then through Frederick W. Clifford, an officer of the Cream of Wheat Co., he says, a merger was arranged with the Commander-Milling Co. The bankers who handled the deal, he says, insisted on including the J. C. Lysie Milling Co. of North Kansas City in the merger. The Commander-Larabee corporation was formed in June, 1926. It became necessary to raise $2,000,000, Bristol says, and George C. Barker of the Continental got the money for them.

A contract then was entered into with the Continental, according to Bristol, under which the Commander-Larabee mills are selling the Continental a third of their total output, or 10,000 barrels of flour a day, at actual cost of production. This contract has proved very valuable, he says, inasmuch as it has enabled the mills to operate at full capacity all the time and so reduce costs. Under the contract, he says, the profits of the Commander-Larabee mills have been $200,000 a month.

Women Need a Mild Laxative -Not a "Physic"

Countless girls and women now know how foolish and needless it is to "purge" and "physic" themselves to avoid sick headache, dizziness, biliousness, salivary skin, colds, or sour, gassy stomach.

They have found that Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin helps to establish natural bowel "regularity" even for those heretofore chronically constipated. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin not only causes a gentle, easy bowel movement, but, best of all, it never gripes, sickens or upsets the most delicate girl or woman. Besides, it is absolutely harmless and so pleasant that even a cross, feverish, bilious, sick child gladly takes it.

CALLS NEWSPAPERS THE PEOPLE'S MIRROR

Percival Chubb Declares They Give Best Notion of Man's Position and Desires.

"Newspapers give us the best notion we can get of where we are as a people. They tell us what we want, and every man, at bottom, is what he wants," said Percival Chubb, leader of the Ethical Society, at yesterday's luncheon of the Scottish Rite Club
at the Annex Hotel.

"Sometimes, when I pick up my Post-Dispatch," he said, "I wonder if the people as a whole want such trenchant criticism as the cartoons of Mr. Fitzpatrick.
They are the boldest criticisms of our social order to be found in newspapers."

"Apparently, then, there is some attempt to give what an unusually endowed artist or writer has to offer, without too much attention to what people want. But, in the main, the newspaper must represent the interests, temper and desires of the great reading public."

"One day last summer the front pages announced that the world had lost a hero. The hero's name was Valentino. He was a moving picture hero. I didn't know much about this hero, and read down the column. I found that his loss was so much deplored because he was the 'perfect lover.'"

"Emerson said, 'The word, liberty, on Webster's lips is like the word love on the lips of a courtiesant.' I regret that this somewhat applies to the loose mouthing of the word love in that connection."

President Elliott's Death.
"Further along, toward the back pages, tucked away somewhere
among the advertising, was notice of the loss of former President Elliott of Harvard University. There was an idea of what the newspapers thought—or what they thought the public thought—was of relative importance. 'The Perfect Lover' on page one and a man who will leave his impress on American thought for at least a century bringing up the rear."

"Last summer I followed, in the newspapers, the record of persons considered sufficiently important for a reception by the Mayor of New York. First came the Cardinals—not our Cardinals—then two Channel swimmers, then the champion pugilist, and so on to the glorification of the pretty woman who came over here for a continental joy-ride—Queen Marie."

"One day I saw a boy's picture in the center of page three. 'What wins the honor of that position?'
I thought, and looked closer. This distinguished person was so distinguished because he held the freckles title. Such is glory. That's where we are."

"Another great clew is radio. I read—again in the newspaper—a statement of a New Jersey official announcing with pride that the public was going to be let in by radio on the Hall-Mills trial."

Feeling the Public Pulse.
"There was some complaint about the relative display of the notice of Valentino's death and Dr. Elliott's, mostly by people of the high-brow type. Heywood Brown replied the next morning that the newspaper is not concerned to fix its own standards, but has to take the standards of the public. And those fellows are very shrewd."

"They have their fingers on the pulse of their public. Every day, I imagine, they evaluate all the news of virtually all this great un-verse to determine just what of it we want."

"I have been talking about the good newspapers. We must remember that scaling down from the New York Times we come to a thing more and more important in the life of cities like New York,
the tabloid paper, a tremendous symptom of the time, a great index of what people want on a lower plane than the readers of the better newspapers."

"Attempting to diagnose this symptom a short time ago in New York, I saw that thousands of persons, reading on the subway and elsewhere, were being served up with a breakfast of 'Beaches.'"

"Advertising may be an even closer clew than news. It tells us what other men want us to want,
with sufficient confidence in our eventually wanting it that they will risk thousands of dollars on it."

Age of Great Prosperity.
"We live in an age of such tremendous prosperity and business efficiency that our whole question is, how in the world to keep it going. Along comes Henry Ford and says production is outrunning consumption; we must curtail one or whip up the other; I will start things by letting my employees off from work on Saturdays to go shopping."

"We are trying to build civilization by acquisition, by getting more things, by losing ourselves in things. The salvation for business
—for humanity—is to want more.
Look around, think of what you haven't got, and see if you can't learn to want it. No generation was ever so nagged to buy things."

"On the way back from New York, I noticed in one of the leading monthly magazines a two-page advertisement with a beautiful picture of a young man and woman.
That was the sex appeal, of course. We have commercialized
sex. Whenever people talk to me of the younger generation, I reply that it's a bit more difficult to keep on the high road than ever before. No generation's sex consciousness ever was so nagged all the time. Look at the magazine cover, the moving picture act, the poster of the thing you're expected to take your children to see—a domestic scene, headed, 'Love 'em

and Leave 'em.'"
"This beautiful advertisement in the magazine—and it was truly beautiful, probably the work of a distinguished artist—was headed,
"The Sweetest Words in the World.' Down at the bottom was,
'For those who know what they mean, there can be no sweeter words than—
"Have a Camel!"'

Sure Way to Stop Night Coughing
A Treatment That Ends Night Coughs in 15 Minutes
Persistent night coughing is usually due to causes which cough syrups and patent medicines do not touch. A remarkable prescription known as Thoxine, working on an entirely different principle, goes direct to the cause, and is guaranteed to stop the stubbornest cough within 15 minutes. One swallow is all that's needed. If it fails, get your money back. No chloroform or other harmful drugs. Safe for children. Equal in good for sore throat for which purpose it is far superior to gargles. 35c, 60c and $1.00. At all drug stores.

During 1933 the Post-Dispatch printed 100,000 Automobile "Wants"—40,000 more than the THREE other St. Louis newspapers combined.

YEAR FOR MAN WHO PLEADS GUILTY OF MAIL FRAUDS

Robert V. Spear, who made a comfortable living for several years obtaining the names of convention delegates in St. Louis from hotel registers and then "wiring home" for money for them, which he converted yesterday to a year and a day in Federal penitentiary by Judge Davis on his plea of guilty of using the mails to defraud.

Spear, who is 30 years old, was caught by police and postoffice inspectors at Hotel Statler with letters in his pockets containing money which had been sent by the wives of two delegates who had "wired home."

PRICE OF FARM PRODUCTS FALLS

General Level 14 Points Below That of a Year Ago.
WASHINGTON, March 30.—The general level of farm prices of agricultural products declined one point from Feb. 15 to March 15 and was 14 points below that of a year ago, the Department of Agriculture announced. Cotton showed a decline of 24 per cent, cottonseed 14 per cent, wheat 17 per cent, sheep 3 per cent, wool 10 per cent, eggs 14 per cent and chickens 3 per cent.

The index of purchasing power of farm products in terms of other commodities is placed at $2 for February against $1 for January and $2 for February last year.

EAST ST. LOUIS MORNING JOURNAL TO BE SUSPENDED

Action Will Not Affect Evening Daily Published From Same Plant, Owner Announces.
The East St. Louis Morning Journal, issued since Feb. 1, will suspend publication tomorrow. In a statement in today's issue, the publishers announced that the established Daily Journal, an afternoon paper published from the same plant, would be in no way affected. Lack of support from the public and advertisers was given as the reason for suspension. The paid circulation was given as 4000 and subscribers were offered either a cash refund or an exchange subscription to the Daily Journal.

Wilshire I-ON-A-CO
A Business Policy Founded Upon Worth of the Product

Presenting to the people of St. Louis a therapeutic appliance offers a sales problem that we are prepared to meet in this manner.

We do not desire to have anyone purchase an I-ON-A-CO until that person is convinced that by use of it, he is to be definitely benefited. It is manifestly impossible for us to place in use a sufficient number that each home may have one on trial. HOWEVER—Gaylord Wilshire, discoverer of the I-ON-A-CO, authorizes us to make this offer.

"I want every ill person in this city to try the I-ON-A-CO free!"
—GAYLORD WILSHIRE

GAYLORD WILSHIRE
Inventor of I-ON-A-CO

An Unusual Offer

YOU have probably heard claims of miraculous cures before. But this is the first time you have been invited to experience a "miracle." Come in and take a delightful free 10-minute treatment. You may be the object of a miracle yourself—without spending one cent. For in many cases, the I-ON-A-CO has produced instantaneous results. Even so-called incurable diseases have responded to it. And what has happened to others may happen to you. As the treatment is free, you have nothing to lose, everything to gain—relief from suffering, renewed health, happiness. This offer is made simply to prove what I-ON-A-CO will do for you. Surely, in view of the amazing results which the I-ON-A-CO has produced, this simple test is worth making. Visit us today. Or if you cannot call, telephone and we will send a representative to give you a free treatment in your home.

Here Is a Partial List of Ailments Which Have Responded to the I-ON-A-CO

Anaemia	Constipation	Heart Disease	Rheumatism
Arthritis	Cystitis	High Blood Pressure	Sciatica
Asthma	Diabetes	Indigestion	Tumor
Baldness	Eczema	Insomnia	Varicose Veins
Bladder Troubles	Gastritis	Neuralgia	Vertigo
Bronchitis	Goitre	Obesity
Catarrh	Hemorrhoids	Premature Gray Hair

Do you know that the I-ON-A-CO, based upon the recent discovery of the great German biologist, Professor Otto Warburg, has resulted in an entirely new method of treating disease—without drugs? This book explains it in detail, tells how the I-ON-A-CO is used right in the home. If you live out of town and cannot visit us, send for a copy.

27 Germ Diseases
that hands may carry—just from touching things
Compiled by LIFE EXTENSION INSTITUTE
Colic, Cholera, Diphtheria, Erysipelas, Gas, Gonorrhea, Influenza, Measles, Mumps, Scarlet Fever, Smallpox, Strep. Throat, Syphilis, Tetanus, Typhoid, Whooping Cough, Yellow Fever, Zoster, etc.
The way influenza spreads is unknown to take every precaution

It's safer to wash with this purifying

—it removes both dirt and germs

YOU must get your hands dirty to get your house clean. You must touch garbage can, dust-pan, broom and mop. You must explore dusty corners.

Do you realize that your hands can't avoid gathering germs as well as dirt? Germs that— for safety's sake—should be removed before you touch your children, prepare their food. Health authorities say hands are among the chief carriers of sickness. Note 27 germ diseases listed above.

Your husband, too, touches car-straps, public telephones, money. Your children handle schoolbooks, pencils, marbles— fondle pets. Germs get on their hands, too. That's why every single member of your family needs this purifying toilet soap, that removes germs as well as dirt.

Beautifies the skin, too

Lifebuoy is so refreshing, so thoroughly satisfying that it has become one of the world's most widely used toilet soaps.

So mild and gentle that it agrees with delicate skins—makes them healthier, lovelier. So cleansing that it removes dirt in a jiffy and brings all-day freedom from perspiration odor.

But best of all, Lifebuoy purifies. Its antiseptic lather removes unseen germs that may endanger health.

Millions love its hygienic scent

Lifebuoy is so different from other toilet and bath soaps that even its scent is different.

Not a perfume, but a clean, pleasantly

Miss Collett Wins Golf Title For Fourth Time

Defeats Miss Van Wie in Final of North-South Women's Tournament, 4 and 2.

By the Associated Press.
PINEHURST, N. C., March 30.—Miss Glenna Collett of Providence, R. I., won the North and South women's golf championship for the fourth time here today by defeating Miss Virginia Van Wie of Chicago, 4 and 2. Miss Collett was two down at the end of nine holes this morning, but she won the next six holes.

Miss Collett played a steady game throughout the entire 16 holes but Miss Van Wie cracked badly after the ninth.

The Providence player was in the rough with her drives on the first and second and lost both holes. The remaining seven holes were even, but on the tenth Miss Van Wie drove into the woods and lost the hole when she played out safe.

Miss Van Wie topped her brassie shot and laid her third in a trap on the eleventh, while Miss Collett, playing safe, evened the match. The twelfth was halved in par, but on the thirteenth Miss Collett sank her first putt for a par win and Miss Van Wie hit her ball with the shank of the club.

Miss Van Wie sent her tee shot into the pond on the water hole fourteenth, but Miss Collett, who had trapped her second shot but got a six to win when the Chicago girl sent her second into a clump of pine back of the green and took eight for the hole.

Miss Collett drove the green on the 215-yard sixteenth and was down in par to win. Miss Van Wie trapping her drive.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PEORIA, Ill., March 30.—J. Steppacher and N. Kargaves of East St. Louis were high among the early two-man team bowlers in the A. B. C. today with a total of 1288. They failed to place in the high 10, but will be up among those to get a big slice of the melon when slashed at the end of the meet.

Steppacher contributed 672 pins to the doubles total, with scores of 225, 207 and 240. In the singles he got 601, which his partner totaled 579. Steppacher's 583 in the five-man event gives him 1856 for all events.

Uruguay Eleven Must Play Clean Or Be Sent Home

Consul-General Issues Ultimatum—Giants Withdraw Players From Team.

Special to The Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, March 30.—Uruguay's disgraceful showing in two soccer games last week is given as the reason for the refusal of the New York Giants to permit any of its players to compete against the South Americans in Saturday's match against a combined team from the American Soccer League. Before departing for Canada last night, Manager Maurice Vandeweghe of the local club instructed his secretary to inform the league of this decision. Five members of the Bronx crew had been selected to represent the league, namely, Tandier and Moorehouse fullbacks; Hausler, Brown and Schwartz, forwards.

While no other manager so far has expressed an opinion of whether his players would be permitted to compete, it is doubtful if Indiana Flooring will permit Leonard and Chaston to participate, as the club is engaged in the second round National challenge cup competition game against Newark the following day.

The scheduled game must be a soccer game and not a riot or the Uruguayans will be sent home on the next boat for Montevideo, Jose Richling, Uruguay Consul General in New York, told the players yesterday.

He summoned the entire team to his office and informed them that is what will happen if there are any more occurrences like the near-riot at Newark on Sunday when the police stopped the contest.

Nathan Agar, sponsor of the tour, attended the meeting and agreed with Mr. Richling's pronouncement. If any more ill feeling is shown he will halt the tour at once, he declared.

Due to Misunderstanding.

"Really, the trouble was due to a misunderstanding on both sides," Mr. Richling said last night. "The fact is, soccer in America is rougher than anywhere else in the world. Our boys were accustomed to a soccer that is more of a brain game. They felt everybody was against them and that they were not being allowed to play their own game. Of course, they went too far. I tried to explain matters to them and now I think everything will be all right."

What soccer fans want to know is if the United States Football Association thinks such disgraceful exhibitions will help the game in this country. It is hard for them to understand how Fernandez, the visitors' center half, who started the fight in Brooklyn, was permitted to play in Newark the following day, and again take an active part in the fight. If one of the American players is chased from the field in the U. S. F. A. cup competition, he is fined or suspended. Why should not visiting teams also be compelled to live up to the rules?

So many suffer needlessly
MARTYR TO PAIN FOR 16 YEARS
Finds relief after spending much money in vain
After spending a great deal of money on medicines without results, a woman who had suffered from a long-standing case of rheumatism, got quick and complete relief by a simple home treatment.

"I have suffered from rheumatism for 16 years and I have spent a great deal of money in trying to get something which would ease the pain," she writes. "I am grateful to say that in Sloan's Liniment I have found instant relief."

Sloan's helps when other remedies fail because Sloan's doesn't just deaden the nerve. It stirs up the bodily forces to throw off the poisons that are causing the pain. Then relief comes as a natural consequence.

So easy, pleasant and clean to use, too. You don't even have to rub it in. Just apply gently, and the medicine brings the relief.

Get a bottle today and have it on hand. All druggists—35 cents.

Greyhound Racing Season Opens at Madison Tonight

Many Familiar Names in Entry List — Actor Boy Likely to Prove Favorite in Inaugural Stake, Feature Event on Card.

A nicely balanced program of greyhound races has been carded for the opening tonight of the Madison Kennel Club's spring meeting across the river. Of the 64 racers scheduled to leap from the starting box in pursuit of the whizzing electric jack rabbit, many are remembered from the two previous seasons, so it won't be necessary for the players to puzzle over their performances. There are just enough strangers on the program to give the race the spice of uncertainty.

Foremost among the events is the Inaugural Stakes over the three-eighths mile. This will bring eight fancy steppers together in a test of stamina and racing craftiness. On form, Actor Boy, Countess Claren, No Foolin' and Up-roar rate highest. The public is likely to install Actor Boy the favorite, but a goodly number of trainers and owners are picking Countess Claren to score. She is as fast as anything in the race and it is just a question of whether she can stick it out as the English female has never started over the route. Up-roar has run it many times and is classed as a strong finisher. If No Foolin' gets the rail he will have something to say about the finish.

The fast quarter mile race is bunched in the fourth race. Buddy Brannigan is in there along with Lady Splinters and Pearlman—all experienced and shifty purse winners. The chief threat should be furnished by Third Tapp, a youngster which has shown dazzling speed and rapid development.

Four veterans and four recruits are thrown in the seventh race over the futurity course. Moving Trigger has an outside position and will be on top when they whizz around the first curve. Tecumseh, Blue, Robin and Bitter Sweet are most likely to be winging it at the finish.

The hurdle race will mark the return of Bambino, only successful female jumper in the history of the sport. She had a long rest and is fresh. Her speed doesn't compare with that of Cimarron, Pat and White Diamond, but the old girl makes no mistakes and should get the short end of the dividend in any event. If the leaders do a "brodie," Bambino will be right there to salute the judges.

Post time is 8 o'clock. The usual transportation facilities will be available and the customary admission fee will be received.

Riverview Club Trap Stars Open Year's Shooting

Two Ranges Are Ready and Events Are Held Three Times a Week.

The Riverview Club has added trap shooting to its many attractions, and members, both old and new are very enthusiastic.

The shooting ground is laid out in an ideal manner just back of the club house, which makes it very convenient to both shooters and spectators.

The trap houses are substantially built of concrete and are all the walks, the yardage marks are of metal laid into the concrete, and everything is convenient and up-to-date, by far the best arranged shooting ground in St. Louis. Two traps have been installed, one to be used for single targets, the other for doubles.

Regular shooting days are Wednesday, Saturday and Sunday.

MUNY SOCCER GAME MAY START EARLIER

Due to the conflict with the cup game between the Ben Miller and the Spartans of Chicago, the Morgan-Killman contest in the municipal soccer championship series may start at 1 o'clock next Sunday instead of 3 o'clock.

Definite decision on the matter will be made some time today. Superintendent of Recreation Tapperson and Manager McKimling of the Killmanays have agreed on the change, but Manager Cummings of the Morgan has yet to be heard from.

In his three years at Collinsville Coach Larson has never finished lower than second in any sport.

Proves a "Lubricant Marvel"

Men are amazed at the results they get from the new motor oil, Iso = Vis. Thousands of letters, like the one below, voluntarily written to the Standard Oil Company (Indiana), praise this new product.

"Standard Oil Company,
Sioux City, Iowa.

Gentlemen:

"I have been so profoundly impressed with the superior qualities of Iso = Vis as a cold weather lubricant that I am pleased to drop you a few lines in commendation of the new lubricant marvel. Have been using Iso = Vis throughout my Buick 48 and at 12 below zero had not the slightest difficulty with the lubricated parts of my car.

"I certainly hope that your success with Iso = Vis is 100%, as it has served me 100% and fulfilled a long-needed want.

Sincerely yours,

(Jan. 8, 1927) J. E. Packer"

Iso = Vis "fulfills a long-needed want" by solving the old problem of dilution. It maintains constant viscosity—never thins out—always lubricates efficiently! Try Iso = Vis—and you'll praise it, too! 30 cents per quart is a trifle higher price than for ordinary oil—but the cost per mile is a whole lot lower!

Iso = Vis "F" for Fords.

SAYINGS OF MRS. SOLOMON

By HELEN ROWLAND

THE MONEY QUESTION.

MY Daughter, how strange is the way of a man with his money!

For, lo, if a woman be a Gold Digger, even the wallet of a Tightwad will open like a flower at her command.

But she that considereth his purse and asketh nothing shall receive nothing, not even his gratitude. For he cannot understand her.

When a damsel leadeeth a man to the Ritz Restaurant and demaneth tarboags and orchids and box seats, he complieth eagerly with all her wishes, and rebelleth not. For he feareth her scorn, and dreads to be called "Cheap Skate."

But for her who saith, "Let us dine at some QUIET little place, and sit in the First Balcony," ANYTHING is good enough. And, in time, she shall find herself demoted to a sandwich and a movie.

Behold, a man will set his nose to the grindstone, and labor all the days of his life to cover a foolish and extravagant wife with sables and pearls and chiffons and imported millinery. For every man delighteth to play Santa Claus to a Dumbbell.

But unto the "efficient" wife, who payeth all her own bills and goeth "fifty-fifty," he oftentimes begrudgeth the price of a birthday gift and the cost of a pair of theater tickets. For the woman who can "take care of herself" will always be permitted to be her OWN Santa Claus! Her "Independence" closeth up the pores of a man's generosity, and is as ice upon the skin of his tenderness.

Likewise, a woman will take pity upon a POOR man, and will cheerfully follow him to the cheap table d'hôte and pay for her own theater ticket. Yea, to the wastrel and the ne'er-do-well, she will lend freely of her hard-earned money; and joyfully feed the "hard-up" at her own table.

But upon him that hath the DUCATS she hath no mercy! When he taketh her forth, there is naught too expensive for her. She goeth the limit with his purse, and draineth his pocket to the last coin! For she hateth a poor sport and a close-fist!

Thus, always, my Daughter, doth the greedy and frivolous woman prey upon the open-handed man, and the weakling do his will with the fair-minded woman.

Verily, verily, Poverty is a love-charm! For when a man and a woman have not a penny between them, then they have naught to wrangle about!

And the first sign of war between the sexes is the DOLLAR SIGN!

Children's Bedtime Story

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

Peter Learns More

Though you work or though you play,
Learn a little every day.

—Peter Rabbit.

KNOWLEDGE is a useful thing. One never realizes how useful it is until he needs it and hasn't it. The more you know about all sorts of things, the better fitted you are for your place in the Great World and to do your part in the work of the Great World. If you allow a day to pass without learning something, that day is a total loss.

Peter Rabbit is full of curiosity, but that curiosity was given Peter by Old Mother Nature in order that he might learn things. It is through it that Peter gains knowledge. He had just learned from little Mr. Garter Snake that members of the Snake family in large numbers gathered to spend the winter in a certain place each year. Now he wanted to know more. "Won't you show me where the members of your family slept last winter?" inquired Peter of little Mr. Garter Snake.

"Why should I?" retorted little Mr. Garter Snake, running his thread of a tongue out in the impudent manner he has.

"Because I ask it," replied Peter with a grin.

"That's no reason," replied little Mr. Garter Snake. "I'm not going to show you that place, but I'll tell you about it. It's a place back here near the foot of the mountain where the earth is sandy and where underneath are a great many rocks. It is a place where we Snakes can crawl in deep enough to be comfortable and dry and warm. You know a Snake can't go anywhere to pass the winter. We must find a place we can get into. This place where you saw all my friends coming from is just the kind of a place we like. So the members of my family gather there from a long distance every fall. There we all sleep."

"But where were all the members of your family going just a little while ago when I saw them?" interrupted Peter.

"Going out into the Great World, of course," replied little Mr. Garter Snake. "What a stupid question?"

"It wasn't stupid," replied Peter sharply. "They were all traveling along together in the same direction just as if they were all going to the same place. If they were not, how should I know it?"

"They are not all headed in the same direction now," interrupted Sammy Jay, who had been listening. "The last I saw of them they were scattering in every direction. Some were headed for the Old Pasture, some were traveling toward the Green Meadow, some were going toward the Old Orchard, and some were headed for the Laughing Brook."

"Of course," said little Mr. Garter Snake. "What else would you expect. They'll scatter for a long way and they won't meet again until cool weather comes next fall."

RECIPES FROM "My Old Virginia Cook Book"

Cheese Salad.

TAKE 4-pound pimiento cheese and rub it through a grater. Then moisten it with five tablespoonsful of cream or milk, and season with salt and a little cayenne pepper. Soften one tablespoonful of gelatine in one tablespoonful of cold water, and then dissolve it by placing cup over hot water. Add this to the cheese mixture and mix thoroughly. Take about eight or 10 green peppers, cut the tops off and remove the seeds and fiber. Then stuff them with the cheese mixture and place on beds of crisp lettuce. Serve with French dressing.

MODISH MITZI

The Goofy
Meets His Friend

By Jay V. Jay

The Goofy has come to meet a train, or more exactly, a friend who is on it—a New Young Man who must be shown the city. What shall the Goofy show him first, he wonders. The statue of Liberty? Or perhaps the two smartly dressed young women wearing new spring suits of jersey. Both have the short jackets and one features the cardigan neckline. Another short jacket style is displayed to very handsome advantage on the checked suit. There is nothing wrong with the Goofy as a sight-seeer—though we don't believe that the New Young Man will have to be shown so very much. He'll appreciate the scenery even if he doesn't know exactly why.

The Goofy never would have staged this meeting of his own free will. He might have known that his friend would admire Mitzi. That was a foregone conclusion. But how was he to know that Mitzi would look with such evident favor upon him? It's practically the first time Mitzi ever turned her back upon a new spring suit without seeing that the fullness of the cape effect is given by tucks, that it fits snugly around the hips. . . . The Goofy is planning a week full of engagements for his friend—just one stag party after another. Not that he is jealous or anything, but, after all, he must do his best to give him a good time.

Success—and the Perils That Attend It

Sudden Expansion of the Head a Thing to Be Avoided.

By WINIFRED BLACK.

SAYING which has attained the dignity of a modern proverb is that which declares "Nothing succeeds like success."

Truth is fairly biased upon these words and is no discounting them.

To have the stamp of success imprinted upon one's work after a fair trial—that success coming from real experience, is worth while, but someone has called attention to the fact that there are great dangers connected with success.

Who has not seen a man who has succeeded in his work, spoiled by what seemed overwhelming success?

Vanity flourishes in the atmosphere of success. Many a man has failed to be equal to the temptations which come to the very successful and lost friends and admirers by it.

Nothing can excuse the overriding of others by the too successful man.

And then I have seen men and women who have become too sensitive, too soft; to bear the ordinary ills of life after a career of unbroken success.

I remember a promising musician who was in a fair way of becoming an artist in playing the piano. After a season in Europe under a great master, the musician came home and immediately began to suffer from envy of other musicians. This trait grew upon him until the harmony of his nature was out of joint and soon the trouble showed in the music which came from his flying fingers.

He could not stand the contrast between himself and another man whose playing was a delight to all his friends. It was said that his easy success in his profession had spoiled him and this seemed to have been true.

It is needed by every earnest worker that he or she should have a large nature, one that cannot be cramped by small failings, one that can work for high ideals and rejoice in their attainment.

If one becomes too much absorbed in his own work, even if it be a great work, if he begins to feel that his music or his art, his writing or whatever he makes his life work, is of first importance in his little world, he is at the beginning of ultimate failure.

We have all seen the danger of overestimating oneself. I remember a teacher, a very clever young woman who was in a school. I often visited long ago. This girl started as an ambitious, fine teacher.

But she was very easily flattered, and soon she began to take more pleasure in showing off before the pupils and visitors whenever opportunity arose.

In the course of one year, this girl deteriorated in her work so fast that discriminating friends said that all her promise in her profession would fail.

We all long for success in our lives and in our work, but it will be well to remember that there are dangers in the drinking of the sweet draught which we so much desire.

To the oft-repeated proverb, "Nothing succeeds like success," might be added, "and nothing is more dangerous."

HERMITS.

Rub together one and a half cupsful of sugar and a cupful of butter. Add three beaten eggs, a teaspoonful of each of cloves, cinnamon and allspice, one cupful of chopped seeded raisins, a tablespoonful of chopped citron. Flour enough to roll. Cut in rounds and bake. These cakes keep well if kept in a tin box.

HOOKWORMS

By Chas. A. L. Reed, M. D.

Former President of the American Medical Association.

YOU, and especially your children, particularly if you live in country districts, are liable to that really widespread nuisance known as hookworm.

What are hookworms? Where do they come from? How do they get into you? These are really important questions.

Hookworms are parasites that live and multiply in the intestines of human beings.

They are transmitted from the bowel discharges of infected subjects by means of contaminated water and food.

They breed originally in the soil, and some soils are more dangerous than others. D. L. Augustine, after extensive study of soil in Alabama, where there is a great variety, which includes almost all the kinds of soil met with in the United States, discovered that the property in a soil which makes hookworms breed is directly related to its texture. The most dangerous soils are, therefore, fine sand, sandy loam and fine sandy loam. Silt, loam and clay are relatively safe.

The lower coastal plane of Alabama contains friable sandy soils with sandy clay or sand subsoil. Of 329 white children from this district examined 98 had hookworm, and the average content of larvae, or eggs, in their discharges was terrific. The colored children appeared not to be so susceptible, as only 66 per cent proved positive and the hookworm eggs were not so numerous by about five times.

On the Appalachian plateau, however, where the soil is still sandy, but has a large proportion of loam, the percentage of white children infested dropped to 25, and that of the colored children to four.

In heavier soils than these the infestation was almost negligible. A child can harbor a fair number of hookworms and still remain perfectly healthy, if he is living under good conditions and is being properly fed and has plenty of exercise. Such a child becomes a "carrier" and is dangerous to the whole community.

In poor, overcrowded, unsanitary districts, however, quite a small infestation will undermine a child's health.

The hookworm produces toxins, or poisons, which lower the resistance of its host—the person who has it—to infection and the effects of fatigue.

A badly infested child is undernourished and undersized, listless and apathetic, anemic and short of breath. Its skin is dry, its hair scanty and it may have swellings of the face and legs.

The usual treatment will remove from 90 to 95 per cent of the hookworms, and two courses of treatment will reduce the worms in even a heavily infested subject to the number—about 25—which he can support without serious effects on health.

Unfortunately, he still remains a carrier, and it is very difficult and costly to eradicate all the worms. Since there is a certain amount of danger in hookworm treatment it is not only bad policy but unfair to the subject to continue his treatment beyond the point of economic cure.

The only practical use of treatment, says Smellie, an authority on the subject, is to reduce the degree of the infestation to the point where, even with some remaining hookworms, there is no hookworm disease.

Children are more susceptible than adults to hookworms. The control of hookworms is a matter for an intensive and skillful public health campaign and the mainstay of its success is the constant examination of all school children and facilities for accurate worm counting. "Carriers" can only be eliminated by efficient sanitation and education. These methods will be effective in time, but are naturally very slow.

It is, however, your duty to help along this result not only by personal co-operation but by educational work as opportunity may offer.

Beet Scrapple.

One quart chopped cabbage, one quart chopped cooked beets, one cup milk vinegar, one cup sugar, salt.

Combine the cabbage, beets and vinegar, add sugar and salt. Scald the vinegar, dissolve the sugar in it and add it to the mixture. Cook until clear. This is a particularly nice relish to serve with mutton or roast beef.

Sand Tarts.

Rub one cupful of butter and one one-half cupful of sugar to a cream; add three eggs, beating yolks and whites separately, one-half teaspoonful of baking powder and a tablespoonful of water. Mix in enough sifted flour to make a dough just stiff enough to roll. Roll thin, cut in squares, sprinkle sugar and cinnamon on top and bake.

This Is Addressed to Women

Though Our Product Is Worn by Men

In the clothes closets of your home, no doubt there are several "half-way" suits of male members of your family. Coats and vests that are in good condition, but with the trousers worn out. Useless! Taking up needed closet space.

These "half-way" suits can again become attractive, serviceable garments by matching the coats and vests with trousers from our stock.

The thing for you ladies to do is to bring these out-of-use garments to us. We can match them with new pants and save your husband or son the cost of a new suit.

Over 15,000 ready-made pants in our stock. Also 50,000 patterns in woollens from which trousers are made to order. We sell pants exclusively—pants for dress-work—and sports wear.

Guard your children's teeth and gums—this statement by the dental profession tells you how

GUARD THE DANGER LINE
WHERE TEETH MEET GUMS

PARENTS realize today that "baby" teeth, even though they are lost in a few years, have a tremendous effect not only upon the permanent teeth—but upon the actual growth and shape of the jaws and upon the child's very health.

The results of an investigation which E. R. Squibb & Sons recently caused to be conducted among 50,000 practicing dentists is of special interest to parents who are seeking the correct oral hygiene for their children to practice.

The answers state that:

(1) Acids are the most frequent cause of tooth decay and irritated gums.

(2) The most serious trouble occurs at the place where teeth and gums meet—known as The Danger Line.

(3) The best product known to neutralize acids in the mouth is Milk of Magnesia.

Squibb's Dental Cream, because it contains more than 50% of Squibb's Milk of Magnesia, is obviously ideal to bring the needed protection to your children. Each time it is used the Milk of Magnesia is forced into every pit and crevice where acids can form. There it neutralizes all existing acids and remains for a long time, for further protection.

In addition, Squibb's Dental Cream not only cleans thoroughly, but contains no harsh grit or substance that might injure a child's delicate mouth.

Heed the verdict of the dental profession. See your dentist regularly. Use Squibb's Dental Cream. You will be safeguarding your children from the dangers of mouth acids. At all drugists—40c a large tube.

Beware of Soot

The entire country is stirred up over the appalling smoke and soot question and experiments for relief are being tried in different cities.

On December 8, 1926, a St. Louis newspaper published an article headed:

SOOT SHOWN HIGH IN SULPHURIC ACID

It further stated that analysis of soot, made to show its poisonous constituents, has shown a content as high as 5.98 per cent of sulphuric acid.

The range in different cities is from 2.75 to 5.98. The article also stated that "It is this element of smoke and soot which causes the corrosion of metal work and the destruction of interior decoration of buildings."

What about the health of the human, who not only has to suffer breathing it outdoors, but who is obliged to inhale the particles that float around the inside of his house and lodge on the Wall Paper, a menace to the entire family?

Truly here is the mission of ABSORENE—not only as a cleaner but as a disinfectant.

THE WOMAN OF IT.

By Marguerite Mooers Marshall

Debunking Bees—and Men

IT WAS not the bee who put the "sting" in "busy," according to Prof. Frank Cole Babbitt of Trinity College. From Prof. Babbitt, a radio dialogue, and from J. G. Millet, the French scientist, an interested public has just been given the low-down on that much gross-agent insect inhabitant of hives.

All this talk about industry and application to duty is preposterous, said Prof. Babbitt. "A bee makes no more than 30 to 35 trips from the hive to the whole life. Has it any sense around the house? It hangs around and waffles. Stupid! So stupid that in a bad season he won't go out at all, scarcely, but stays around the house raising more young bees than he can feed. Winter comes, as it must, and they all starve to death."

Millet informs us that the bee is devoid of intelligence and even of ordinary common sense. It doesn't, he says, know a good honey-producing flower from a bad one.

This debunking of insect life is all very well as far as it goes. But what women will wonder is why it cannot go farther. Since science has reached the point of Telling All about Bees, why not also tell the truth about men? Why cannot some dispassionate searcher after truth debunk men?

Men, like bees, have a great collection of unearned reputations. In default of any other debunker, The Woman Of It presents a few of its own punctures of popular myths about men.

Men are guided by reason. Yes—they are! As for instance, during the bear-garden performance of the Senate in the closing hours of its latest session. That temper, pettily personal, irrationally excited group of legislators so shamingly illustrated the repeated assertion that men ought to manage public affairs because women are too emotional!

Men are strong and silent. Oh, obviously! That's why they fall for the cheapest little "temptation" why an intelligent man jeopardizes success and happiness for the girl whose male prototype doesn't even appear on the horizon of an intelligent woman. And this male "silence!" It isn't possible for men to put through even the simplest business deal without three voluminous conferences and three long, tedious hours and go far into the night have proper rest snatched grudgingly of us devoted men to calm, serene, taking stock of our lives and our lives.

Men are above petty vanity. Yet men are more fastidious about their hair or their shoes or their clothes than is her brother about his. Human fastidiousness cannot go farther. If anybody doubts the human male's preoccupation with his personal appearance, go to the subway gum machines. No mere girl gets a chance for a look!

Men work so hard. Any girl in an office can debunk this line. She knows how much—that is to say, how little time—the average male spends in toil, and how many minutes and hours he devotes to lunching, telephoning, telling stories, "conferring" and wishing work on his women assistants.

Men are men. That is to say, they are always one man whom we and other lucky women like—not merely love—better than anybody in the world. We are no man-haters—far from it. But we and other women would like men just as well if they didn't pretend so much. Why do they do it? Perhaps they can't, much longer. Science has called the bee's bluff. Will men be next?

In the Spring.

All up and down the avenues. Ford Lincolns, Mercedes, Great Buicks and better Cadillacs. Filled with spring-favored he's, and, as each one purrs past a maid, it pauses for a while.

"A lift?" "Which way?" or "Come along?"

The gentleman will smile. And if the lady should decline. The car rolls forward, till it spies another lady, for. Who knows? Perhaps she will smart roaster, chummy club sedan and limousine.

And Ford and shabby touring car—for all the same routine! The big parade speaks eloquent that spring has come, that's all. No youthful, not-so-young-thought hearts.

All feel the same old call of romance in the budding spring. But methods change, indeed. Impatient Cupid steps on it. In this new age of speed. O. T.

THE RAGGED EDGE

A NEW STORY OF LOVE, ADVENTURE AND MYSTERY

by HENRY C. ROWLAND

SYNOPSIS

Granville Boyd, owner and navigator of the yacht Rigel, anchored in the harbor at Hamilton, Bermuda, is about to start on a semi-scientific expedition around the world. He is accompanied by his sister, Carillon, and a party of scientists. Carillon meets Bengal Dodd, who has brought his yacht Gunga to Bermuda on her maiden cruise, and Carillon asks Dodd to tag along with the Rigel. Obtaining Boyd's consent, Dodd asks Jim Howland and his daughter, Gertrude, to accompany him. As they are about to leave a widow at one of the Hamilton hotels loses her jewels and Carillon is suspected of taking them.

INSTALLMENT V

A TETE-A-TETE

HOWLAND nodded, but Bengal asked Boyd what he meant by the family curse.

"Our paternal grandfather who rolled up the family fortune was probably one of the most ruthless pirates Wall Street ever withered under. He operated from behind masked batteries, and he left a trail of wreckage in his wake. Derelict railroads and banking houses. The bloodthirsty old bear had a little inconspicuous office on New Street, and there he sat like a spider in the middle of his web, all rigged out with the latest stock and produce exchange tickers of his day, news slips, weather reports, private wires, even an anemometer on the top of the building. He studied the pulse and temperature and respiration of the different markets and would sometimes wait for weeks before striking. Then when he did he dealt broadsides, went at his hammering with a pile driver, smashed interests right and left. He was a destroying angel, or devil, and didn't care where the blows fell. He made and lost millions, eventually dying a good deal ahead of the game. Hell must have been hungry for him."

"Then you think Carillon inherited some of his cupidity, but in a different and specialized form?" Bengal asked.

"That seems a reasonable bet. Besides his bear operations and hypotheses that several times nearly got him flogged he had a monomania for antiques, specializing in glass and porcelain. He was once known deliberately to have gone after and ruined a man, presumably a friend, so that he might ultimately grab his collection, which he did. He was infinitely worse than Carillon, but then she's only a girl with a passion for gems. She hasn't the old man's brains, nor finesse. If I don't put her safely away for a while at least, sooner or later the state will do it for me."

"All the same, don't do it, Boyd," Bengal leaned forward, speaking earnestly. "Did you ever visit any such place as you have in mind for your sister?"

Boyd shook his head.

"Well, I have. Two of my college mates, one a doctor, the other a brilliant journalist, columnist, have been sick away in the last year. Rum and dope. They are in different living tombs. The best of the sort New England offers. Very pretty and peaceful to look at . . . from the outside, like a cemetery. Even inside, few visitors get the ghastliness, these dead shells rustling about, listless, lifeless, growing restless and nervous as the hour for the palliative draws near, making feeble automatic efforts to chat with attendants who are kind but outside their pale gray world; playing cards, billiards, reading, all such motions vague, detached, carried on as if from a previous momentum, or operated by radio from a soul driven to some place infinitely remote, and apathetic, no longer interested in its former tenantry. My God, man . . . Bengal flung out his hands, the perspiration beading on his brow. "It's obscene, churning, these decaying souls. Life, color, beauty all behind them, a dwindling oblivion ahead. God's failures, going back to nothing. Carillon would not survive it a month. You'd find her dead some morning, dead while she had something left to kill. Or stark mad, playing with her baubles, fondling and kissing them . . ."

"Shh! . . . O, Lord, I forgot . . ." Boyd prodded his finger nervously at the open skylight of a hatch trunk a few feet from where they sat. Bengal perceived immediately that this must be the source of light and air for Carillon's cabin, and that, facing it, he had been speaking as he was into an amphiphone. So that if Boyd was fixed in his determination then a dread picture of what was in store for her must have been offered the girl's scrutiny. The horror of it.

Bengal rose suddenly to his feet. "May I go down and talk to her?"

Boyd nodded. He was very pale, sweating, and though averse to stimulants, he touched the steward's bell. Bengal slid down the companionway and finding a door that corresponded to the hatch, he knocked. A timid, untroubled voice said, "Come in," and at the same time something was tossed down the companionway and fell flinging a few feet from Bengal. It was the key to the door of the owner's comfortable room that Boyd, a kindly if sorely tried brother, had assigned his sister.

Bengal unlocked and opened the door, stepped inside and closed it behind him. Carillon was lying on the spacious bunk, a heap of cushions behind her head. She had smoothed down over her a dressing gown of pale primrose silk, and in the subdued light that found its way down under the awnings she looked to Bengal as if thinly sheathed in gold. One small bare foot had escaped this sheathing, and he wondered why the pink little toes with their sea shell trimmings were drawn so tensely back. It was, for a close observer like himself, the only indication this girl gave of a nervous tension that must have been extreme.

His first act was now to screw down the skylight despite the discomfort bound to ensue. But while in the act of doing this Boyd's voice said drily: "No need to smother yourselves, Dodd. Howland and I are going below." So Bengal opened it, a little flushed.

Carillon laughed. "There is probably only one man living that Gran would waive conventions for enough to permit a tete-a-tete like this in my cabin, Bungle, and that man is you."

"Then let's make it a real one," Bengal answered. "Carillon, the time has come for a showdown."

"All right. What have you got? Let's see your hand."

"It checks with yours."

"I don't get you, Bungle." She tossed aside a book. Glancing at the title, Bengal read, "L'histoire des Grands Bijoux du Monde." So Carillon's passion for precious gems extended even to reading the histories, so often fraught with tragedy of these, just as another girl thus incarcerated might kill time by reading "L'histoire des Grandes Passions du Monde."

Bengal seated himself in a wicker chair, drew the tips of his spread fingers together, rested his chin on them and looked at her thoughtfully and said with a calm finality against which any flippancy on her part would have blunted its point: "I mean, my dear, just that. It makes no odds whatever in my sympathy for you whether or not you yielded to irresistible impulse to grab off that woman's jewels. Personally, I hold that any such barnyard hen who plasters herself with jewels is asking for rapine, whether of the jewels or of herself or both. But to serve you most effectually, I've got to know the truth."

It struck Bengal, then, that Carillon's eyes with their long apertures and upward outward slant were the more remarkable in chameleon properties, assumed the prevailing color note. Where yesterday they had been distinctly aquamarine, today in the soft light and pervading primrose of the gown they had a spring foliage yellow sheen.

"WHAT IF I TELL YOU I TOOK THEM?"

But whatever their color, even her companion could scarcely call them frank.

"What if I tell you I took them," she said.

"That will be all right. I'll help you to get away with it."

"How?"

"In whatever way we decide to be the best bet."

"And after that . . ."

"After we have your face, the jewels will have to go back. The point is this, Carillon, I want to spare you the humiliation of possible arrest and examination on a charge of theft, and also save you from the sort of place that you may have heard me describe before I knew that I was talking into your skylight. But I can't with any self respect make myself a party to lifting this woman's jewels, because I haven't the extenuating fact of your insistent idea, your irresistible passion for jewels."

Carillon was silent for an instant, then asked: "Do you think I took them?"

"No, I give you credit for a lot more sense."

"Then who do you think did?"

"Your former maid, that girl Irma. She knew of your weakness and saw a chance to profit by it. You should have thought of that and fought shy of the bait. But if by any chance you did lift the jewels, then for Heaven's sake tell me so, and save me all the fuss and bother of trying to prove it on Irma, and possibly making a fool of myself."

AUCTION BRIDGE AS PLAYED BY EXPERTS

ADDED interest was given to this week's Radio game, broadcast from Station KSD, by the fact that the contestants were four of New York City's most noted experts. Paired against Mr. Work and Mr. Whitehead were Sidney S. Lenz, called the Champion of Champions, because of the number of Whist and Auction trophies he has accumulated, and John H. Smith, famous bridge player, publisher of Auction-Bridge Magazine, and originator of Radio Bridge.

These were the hands: Mr. Lenz, Dealer in the "South" position; Spades, 9, 7, 4; Hearts, 3, 6; Diamonds, 6, 4; Clubs, Q, J, 10, 5, 4. Mr. Work, "West"; Spades, 8, 5, 2; Hearts, 7, 5, 3; Diamonds, A, K, Q, 3; Clubs, 8, 6, 2. Mr. Smith, "North"; Spades, K, J, 3; Hearts, A, 10, 9, 4; Diamonds, 8, 7, 5; Clubs, 9, 7, 3. Mr. Whitehead, "East"; Spades, A, Q, 10, 6; Hearts, K, Q, 2; Diamonds, J, 10, 9, 3; Clubs, A, K.

The dealer passed. Mr. Work merely bid one diamond on his four diamonds headed by the A, K, Q. This bid, even without any side strength, as in this case, is sanctioned by modern players for first or second hand. Mr. Smith's partner, Mr. Whitehead, was not strong enough in however, was not strong enough in top honors even for a defensive bid, in spite of the fact that he had the king-jack of spades on the side. Mr. Smith passed.

Mr. Whitehead, fourth hand, was so unusually strong that he could have passed his partner's diamond bid with comparative certainty that Mr. Work could make game. 11 tricks at diamonds. However, Mr. Whitehead had no trump because, with his hand, it seemed better to have Mr. Lenz "South" as the original leader, particularly if spades or hearts were opened; also the no-trump seemed to promise a larger score. One no-trump held the bid.

Mr. Lenz led the queen of clubs, the proper opening from queen-jack-10. Dummy was spread, and Mr. Whitehead found himself confronted with a problem. Assuming that Mr. Lenz held five cards of the suit he opened, and not knowing the location of the ace of hearts or the king-jack of spades, or the division of the six outstanding spades, Mr. Whitehead was sure of four tricks—two clubs, four diamonds, one heart and one spade—before losing or risking the loss of his second club stopper.

Mr. Whitehead saw that he might essay a spade finesse upon his first entrance into dummy; if successful, this would give him game. But if not successful, Mr. Lenz, winning the spade trick, would immediately clear his clubs and later probably could take at least three club tricks, which, with the ace of hearts and the spade trick already taken, would kill Dealer's game.

If he led a heart first from dummy, thus establishing or making a heart trick, it would then be necessary for him to make only one successful spade finesse in order to secure three odd. Unless a heart were established first, a double finesse in spades would be necessary, should Mr. Smith hold the ace of hearts. If Mr. Smith held

SIX CHINESE KILLED
IN NANKING AFFAIR

This Is Estimate of Chiang,
Who Has Ordered Protest Made to Anglo-American Authorities.

By the Associated Press.
SHANGHAI, March 31.—Chinese at Chungking, on the Yangtze River in Szechwan province, have torn down and destroyed the American flag on the United States consulate. Chungking is about 600 miles inland.
The general situation in the Yangtze Valley and in Shanghai is as strained as ever. Reports from upper river points show increasing anti-foreign agitation, especially in Nanking and Hankow.

Chiang's Estimate of Casualties.
The Chinese casualties from the Anglo-American bombardment of Seony Hill, Nanking, last Thursday, were estimated by the Cantonese commander, Chiang Kai-shek, in a statement today as six killed and 15 wounded, with the majority of the victims civilians.
From 40 to 50 houses were destroyed.

He emphasized that a full and accurate report was not yet available and that these figures were subject to revision.
Chiang said he had instructed the Nanking garrison commander to lodge a protest with the British and American naval authorities
against "what I consider the unjustified bombardment of the city."

No Notice of Bombardment.
"No notice was given us before the bombardment," he added, "and no time was allowed in which to take measures to protect foreign lives and property. The Nationalist military authorities consider the bombardment a great indignity, and our officers and men in Nanking
are deeply aroused and incensed."

Reports concerning Nanking, which he characterized as exaggerated, had "created a tense international atmosphere," he said, adding:
"As a result of these reports it is feared we have lost much of the sympathy which formerly existed
for us among the liberty-loving peoples of the world."

The Nationalist leaders want friendly relations with the foreign powers.
"We are not anti-foreign, but pro-Chinese. Our aim is to secure international equality to become an equal in the family of nations."
"Any nation willing to treat us
as equals is our friend, although it may have oppressed us in the past."
Chiang protested the presence
here of foreign troops and warships and the elaborate measures taken for the defense of the international settlement, which, he claimed, "only create a feeling of suspicion and mistrust."
Measures of Empire Builders.
"They are the measures usually taken by empire builders toward their colonies," he said, "measures which it would be fitting to adopt toward savages or semicivilized peoples."
The authorities in the foreign settlements, he continued, had not permitted the Nationalists to share
the work of protecting the Chinese within those settlements.
He termed this "an intolerable condition," and added:
"I hope the settlement authorities of their own accord will abolish martial law, withdraw their troops and warships, and permit
the Nationalist authorities to undertake what is their duty—the protection of foreign lives and property within Chinese territory."
He asserted that the barbed wire entanglements on the borders of the French and international settlements were a constant provocation to the Chinese, remarking:
"As I approached Shanghai by the river, I noticed the large number of foreign warships and also the sandbags and barbed wire works. This produced a very unfavorable impression on me."
"Foreigners must understand
